

Council Committee Appointed to Plan Fund for Schools

Increased Water Rates,
Special School Tax, and Special School Bond Issue
Are Proposed.

AN AGAIN REFUSED
BY ATLANTA BANKERS

Almerman Bachman, Al-merman Duval and Councilman Inman Are Named to Council Committee.

Increased water rates, a special tax, or a special school bond issue, or a combination of the three, are proposed to council in special session Friday as the only possible means of forestalling the closing of the schools in September.

Three plans were referred to a special committee composed of Alderman J. R. Bachman, finance committee chairman; Almerman Duval, Beecher Hall and Councilman Edward H. Inman, who were instructed to prepare ordinances with the assistance of Attorney James L. Mayson, to submit all three proposals and communications of all three in order that they may not definitely at its regular session Monday afternoon.

Special Session Held.
The special session had been called Mayor Walter Sims Thursday on request of the finance committee attending the Atlanta Clearing House association had refused to lend $500,000 the school department to tide it over the last four months of the year.

A sub-committee of the finance committee held a conference with the bankers Friday afternoon to ask a loan of $500,000 on the same basis as that made by the Citizens and Southern bank last November, which amount it was hoped would be supplemented by public improvements and retaining a high water rate which has been in effect all this month and part of last month.

The bankers flatly rejected the request for the smaller loan on the same grounds that they had rejected the $500,000 request, because it is illegal to lend money to the city for operation during the next year after the loan is made and that it is the policy of the banks "not to encourage customers to spend more money than their legitimate income."

Chairman Bachman's announcement that the second appeal to the banks had been rejected disarranged plans that had been made by council members Thursday to ask that the presented water rate be retained. Retention of the water rate was proposed.

Water Will Have No Terror Today For City's Youth

Bands To Furnish Accompaniment to First Splashes of Season.

BY STEWART F. GELDERS.
If water alone could make all young things grow Atlanta would boast a race of child geniuses by sundown today.

For 2:30 o'clock this afternoon is the hour set for the opening of Atlanta's municipal swimming pools and young Atlanta, right down to the last freckle, is going to be wet by 2:31.

It is to be a great day for the younger generation. That was the official communique issued from the office of L. L. Wallis, general manager of parks, on the eve of the grand splash.

Music for Bathing.
At Piedmont the Rainbow orchestra is to shatter the atmosphere with galas of jazz music as an obligato to the grand symphony of childish screams and singing waters.

At Grant park Clint Barber's brass band is to do the same.

The conductors are to give the signal for the year's initial plunge with the first notes of their respective programs. The programs had not been announced Friday night, but it was expected that a rollicking bar-carolle would be featured on each.

Mozzart park, Maddox park, Oakland City and, for the darker population, Washington park, are to be included in the afternoon's galas.

In each bath house General Manager Wallis has stationed an eagle-eyed guardian of public propriety, delegating to them the power of bathing suit censorship voted him by the council park committee last week.

Silk Suits Barred.
White suits, one-piece suits, silk suits and others contrived to reveal rather than shield the form divine all are to fall under the official taboo.

Life guards are to cruise the bathing places, eager to win glory and fame with daring rescues.

And, the pride of Manager Wallis' heart, in each pool will be a herd of spirited waterhorses, as fractious and wild as any bronches that ever champed a bit in western rodeo.

"Shoot the chutes," turning bars, diving boards and other equipment aimed to add zest to aquatic sport are in place and gleaming with new paint.

At 2:30 o'clock every youngster in Atlanta is welcome to try them all.

ACCUSED PRELATE BELIEVES IN BIBLE AND PRAYER BOOK

Bishop Brown Admits Himself To Be 'Heretic' While Subscribing to Church Doctrines.

SYMBOLIC BELIEF PERMITS PARADOX

Defense Built Around
Three Main Points.
Christianity Founded on Paganism Is Claim.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Cleveland, May 30.—Bishop William M. Brown, testifying in his own defense today before the trial board of the Protestant Episcopal house of bishops, reaffirmed his belief in "every word in the Bible, the Book of Common Prayer" from cover to cover and each and every article of the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds.

Bishop Brown acknowledged authorship of the book which he has presented to the court, and admitted himself a "heretic." Symbolic interpretation of the whole Christian religion was given as the reconciliation of his attitude.

Is End of Defense.
The accused bishop's testimony wound up the case for the defense. He is yet to be cross-examined, but this,
it was stated by Charles L. Dibble, church advocate, would be confined to a few questions tomorrow, probably the last day of the trial.

Bishop Brown took the stand after three other witnesses called on his behalf failed, under court rulings, to qualify as experts. This forced Joseph W. Sharts, chief counsel for the defense, to read into the record voluminous notes on what he expected to prove by the witnesses, the object being to preserve these points as bases for an appeal in case his client is found guilty of uttering doctrines not held by the church.

The defense was built upon three assertions. First, that interpretations of doctrines are a mental process and that the "only possible uniformity of doctrine is one which leaves the individual member liberty to accept words according to his individual grasp of them."

Cite Church History.
The second point was historical, contending that the church had never attempted to say how its ministers should believe, but only what they should hold in faith. On this point citations were read to show that from the time of origin, about A. D. 230, to the present, some leaders of the church had accepted doctrines in a symbolic or figurative sense and others in a literal or objective sense.

The third point sought to prove that Christianity is but an outgrowth of ancient pagan religions, their forms, ceremonies and facts having been carried bodily forward and applied symbolically to Jesus of Nazareth.

Testimony Thrown Out.
Theodore Schroeder, of Coscob, Conn.; the Rev. Arthur E. Whatham, a rector attached to the Kentucky disocese, and Colonel Emory S. West, U. S. A., retired, of Oak Park, Ill., were called to present these points, but did not get beyond stating where they had obtained their knowledge. In each instance the church advocate interposed a successful objection that the testimony was irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial and that the questions sought to bring out the opinion of a private citizen.

England's 'Dream Baby' Wins House of Lords Reverses Lower Court. Promise of Name and Title

London, May 30.—England's 'Dream Baby' has at last won the promise of a name and the right ultimately to succeed to the title of Lord Amphill, taking one of the proudest seats in the house of lords.

Baby Geoffrey, now less than three years old, was registered at birth by the Honorable John Russell, son of Lord Amphill and husband of the child's mother.

It was then that the Honorable Christobel Russell, a tall, striking brunette, who had cut a dash in the rather hectic post-war gaieties of London's smart set, startled England with an amazing story.

Her husband, she said, was the father of the child. She declared that Baby Geoffrey had been conceived on a night when her husband, sleep-walking, came into her bedroom.

The case was taken to the courts.
Russell suing for divorce. He admitted he had entered his wife's room, but still denied relations with her. The Honorable Christobel repeated her sleep-walking story, reiterating that her husband was not conscious of his acts. The words

'Dream Baby' sprang to the headlines.

For two years the case has held the spotlight. Russell was granted a divorce a year ago, on grounds of his wife's misconduct with an unknown man after he had presented evidence to show that Mrs. Russell—with the war-bred camaraderie of London's smart set—had made week-end trips with other men.

The house of lords, which has been struggling with the strange case for months, Friday sustained an appeal of the husband's testimony that he had not had relations with Christobel under which the divorce had been granted. The Honorable Christobel is expected to begin action to establish the legitimacy of the child, and the opinion of some of England's best legal minds supports her.

Lord Birkenhead himself, reading the decision of the lords, declared that the husband's testimony that he had not had relations with Christobel should not be admitted. When Geoffrey is 21, he said, and applies for admission to the house of lords, such evidence will be still refused.

'Geoffrey will be pronounced legiti-mate,' Birkenhead said.

Coolidge Breaks With Lodge Gang On World Court

STARTLING CHAIN CONNECTS YOUTHS TO FRANKS CASE

Stories of Millionaires'
Sons of Actions on Night
Boy Was Kidnaped Said To Differ.

ONE ADMITS OWNING
HORN-RIMMED GLASSES

Both Were Students of Moral Perversion and Strange Quirks in Fibre of Mankind.

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.

Chicago, May 30.—From a pseudoscientific interest taken by a group of young Chicago university students in moral perversions, there emerged Friday a startling chain of circumstances, which, police declared, tended to connect two sons of millionaires with the brutal kidnapping and murder of 13-year-old Robert Franks.

An almost unbelievable story, unfolded through days of patient investigation, led the police to take into custody Nathan E. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb for questioning about the murder of young Franks. Leopold is the son of the multi-millionaire proprietor of the Morris Paper Box company. His companion, Loeb, is the son of Albert H. Loeb, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck company.

Admission Is Forced.
The most experienced detectives in Chicago and the best staff the state's attorney's office could assemble were questioning the two youths Friday night in an effort to determine whether they had any actual connection with the murder of the Franks boy, whose body was found afloat in a culvert here.

Leopold has admitted that the horn-rimmed spectacles found on the body of young Franks belonged to him. His admission came after police detectives traced the ownership through a Chicago firm of opticians, who discovered they had sold him the glasses.

Boys Say It's Mistake.
But Leopold stoutly denies that he had any connection with the Franks crime and declares that he lost the glasses while walking through the swamp where Franks' body was found more than two weeks ago. The Leopold youth, a doctor of philosophy, a recognized ornithologist and a postgraduate student at the University of Chicago, declares he is the victim of a desire on the part of the police to fasten the crime on someone.

Young Loeb, also 19, not quite so intellectual in his interests as Leopold, also denies any knowledge of the Franks crime and declares that he and his chum are the victims of "a horrible mistake."

Stories Differ.
But, the police, pointed out, the stories of the two young men as to where they were the night Franks met his death differ.

Leopold says the night the Franks boy disappeared he and Loeb picked up two girls and took them to an isolated spot in a park, following a dinner at a cabaret.

Loeb says he left Leopold after the cabaret dinner and went to his own home.

Last Sunday, it was disclosed by a high officer of the police department, Leopold, then under suspicion and taken to the swamp where Franks' body was found, denied he ever had owned any glasses and professed to be unfamiliar with the territory in the swamp and adjacent to it. Friday, he said he had been to the swamp many times, that he owned the glasses found on young

President Stands Flat-footed on the Harding-Hughes Proposal and Rejects Compromise.

MEMORIAL ADDRESS IS VEHICLE OF FIRE

Speech at Arlington Forecasts Bitter Fight Among G. O. P. Regulars at the Cleveland Convention.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, May 30.—Breaking openly with Senator Lodge on the world court issue, President Coolidge has demanded a straight-out acceptance or rejection of the Harding-Hughes plan which the republican senators are attempting to replace with a patchwork compromise proposition.

Coolidge refuses to accept this compromise and declares that the United States must either go into the existing court and accept the duties which such action would impose, or else keep out of the whole business.

His Words Emphatic.
His views were made tersely and emphatically in a Memorial day address at Arlington cemetery. It is the first time Coolidge has publicly discussed the world court, except merely to affirm his adherence to the Harding-Hughes plan.

His address was a strong plea for entrance into the existing court as a means toward further progress in establishing the machinery of peace for the world. Without mentioning the Pepper compromise plan by name, Coolidge pointedly declared that the United States could accomplish nothing by taking a doubtful or ambiguous position or by proposing changes in the existing tribunal which probably would be rejected by the other powers.

Forecasts Big Fight.
Coolidge's vigorous declaration, coming almost on the eve of the Cleveland convention, and so pointedly repudiating the position of the republican senators, forecasts a hot fight if the senators attempt to write this section of the party platform.

"We have such an opportunity before us to lend the force of our example for the peaceful adjudication of differences between nations," Coolidge said. "Such action would be in entire harmony with the policy which we have long advocated. I do not look upon this as a certain guarantee against war, but it would be a method of disposing of troublesome questions, an accumulation of which leads to irritating conditions and results in unlucky hostile sentences. More than a year ago President Harding proposed that the senate should authorize our adherence to the protocol of the permanent court of international justice, with certain conditions."

Flat-Footed Declaration.
"His suggestion has already had my approval. On that I stand."

"I should not oppose other reservations, but any material changes which would not probably receive the consent of the many other nations, would be impracticable. We cannot take a step in advance of this kind without assuming certain obligations. Here again if we receive anything we must surrender something. We may as well face the question candidly, and if we are willing to assume these new duties in exchange for the benefits which would accrue to us, let us say so. If we are not willing, let us say that.

"We can without fear in an upright, downright, square American way meeting the world and bearing our part of the burdens of the world. We must meet those burdens and overcome them, or they will meet us and overcome us. For my part, I desire my country to meet them without evasion and without fear in an upright, downright, square American way."

He Sees No Future Peril.
"While there are those who think we would be exposed to peril by adhering to this court, I am unable to attach great weight to their arguments. Whatever differences, whatever perils exist for us in the world will come anyway, whether we oppose or support the court. I am one of those who believe we would be safer, and that we would be meeting our duties better, by supporting it and making every possible use of it. I feel confident that such action would make a greater America, that it would be productive of a higher and finer national spirit, and of a more complete national life.

Would Not Neglect Security.
But meanwhile, the president would not neglect the security of the country. "There have been and will be tendencies of one nation to encroach on another," he said. "I believe in the maintenance of an army and navy, not for aggression, but for defense. Security and order are our most valuable possessions. They are cheap at any price. But I am opposed to every kind of military aggrandizement and to all forms of competitive armament. The ideal would be for all nations to become parties to mutual covenants limiting their military establishments, and making it obvious that they are not maintaining to menace each other. This ideal should be made practical as fast as possible."

PEPPER IS COOL TO COOLIDGE SPEECH.

Washington, May 30.—Commenting upon the world court discussion by President Coolidge in his Memorial day address at Arlington today, Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, who drafted the proposal reported out by the majority members of the foreign relations committee, said he hoped the senate would move promptly "along the lines of the committee's report."

"The president has simply reaffirmed what he said when he commended the Harding proposal to the senate last December," the Pennsylvania senator said in a formal statement. "It is as if he had said to the senate, 'I have made my move; it's your turn next.'"

"I have no doubt the president would approve the action of the senate if we were to adopt the modification of the Harding proposal, which was reported out by the committee on foreign relations. In the meantime, I do not see how he could be expected to vary the proposal which he originally commended."

"It is in order to get the benefit of collective judgment that the foreign policy of the United States must, under the constitution, result from a meeting of minds between the president and the senate. If, after the senate has acted, the president does not approve, then there is something like a deadlock. That happened when Mr. Wilson was president, but I do not apprehend anything of that sort in this case."

"It is the senate's move and my hope is that the move will be made promptly and along the lines of the committee's report."

LEARN WAR'S LESSONS.
PERSHING URGES.

Camp Merritt, N. J., May 30.—Memorial ceremonies would be a "meaningless sham" if the American people did not intend to profit by the bitter lessons of the war, General Pershing declared in a prepared address here today at exercises attending the dedication of a monument erected in the memory of those who died at Camp Merritt during the war.

"Here under the streets of emergency, many for the first time had to learn the most elementary lessons of obedience," General Pershing said. "Here, in a few crowded days or hours, they faced the most trying concentration of administrative detail and classification under adverse circumstances. But Camp Merritt was only one example of the result of inadequate preparation during peace to meet the exigencies of war, a fact all too forcibly borne in upon the minds of our troops as time went on. "What must have been the feelings of uncertainty of these young, untrained and untutored officers and men as they wrote their final farewells to family and friends and bravely set out on their crusade for civilization? How often must each have wished for better knowledge of his duties and his task."

"All honor to these patriotic men, but shame be upon us as a people for the serious lack of foresight that during the first year of the war resulted in such an utter absence of plan or system. "Shall we, then, grasp the importance of some pre vision? Shall we profit by the lessons of all our wars, lessons most vividly presented during the world war, still fresh in our minds? Or shall we continue to indulge in false hope and vain delusion and allow ourselves to drift back into the old attitude of inertia? "If we are not to take counsel together as to the future then our meeting here today is a meaningless sham, our sentiments for those we mourn insincere, and we shall be unworthy as a people of the heritage their sacrifices have saved for us."

CONGRESSMAN SHERWOOD SPEAKS IN HOUSE.
Washington, May 30.—Turning aside temporarily from its legislative rush, the house today heard Representative Sherwood, democrat, Ohio,

How often must each have wished for better knowledge of his duties and his task."

"If we are not to take counsel together as to the future then our meeting here today is a meaningless sham, our sentiments for those we mourn insincere, and we shall be unworthy as a people of the heritage their sacrifices have saved for us."

"What must have been the feelings of uncertainty of these young, untrained and untutored officers and men as they wrote their final farewells to family and friends and bravely set out on their crusade for civilization? How often must each have wished for better knowledge of his duties and his task."

"All honor to these patriotic men, but shame be upon us as a people for the serious lack of foresight that during the first year of the war resulted in such an utter absence of plan or system. "Shall we, then, grasp the importance of some pre vision? Shall we profit by the lessons of all our wars, lessons most vividly presented during the world war, still fresh in our minds? Or shall we continue to indulge in false hope and vain delusion and allow ourselves to drift back into the old attitude of inertia? "If we are not to take counsel together as to the future then our meeting here today is a meaningless sham, our sentiments for those we mourn insincere, and we shall be unworthy as a people of the heritage their sacrifices have saved for us."

Upshaw Sounds Knell of Hate In Memorial Speech to G. A. R.

First Southerner To Speak To Federal Veterans Acknowledges End of Bitterness of '60s.

Gettysburg, May 30.—(Special.)—William D. Upshaw, member of congress from the fifth Georgia district, today delivered the annual memorial address here, under the auspices of the Gettysburg post, G. A. R. He is the first southerner to be accorded this honor.

Opening his speech, Upshaw drew attention to the significance of his presence there, as the guest of a post of the G. A. R., to deliver a memorial day address. "In other lands that have been torn by internal strife," said Congressman Upshaw, "bitterness lives and blights for generations after the cannons have been sunk and the smoke of battle has cleared away; but here in our beloved country, we see the son of a Confederate soldier invited by a post of the Grand Army of the Republic to speak the message of fellowship on our national Memorial day."

Hated Is Passed. Congressman Upshaw's speech throughout was featured by this sentiment. He drew a vivid picture of the nation reunited after its baptism of blood in the sixties and told of incidents that have been and are being, the old animosity, the hatred between the north and the south of fifty years ago, has forever passed.

The speaker urged that the time has come when the federal government ought to include in its pension lists the few remaining veterans of the armies of the Confederacy.

"Not in mendacious supplication," he said, "would such a governmental recognition be accepted, but simply and supremely as a token of the complete picture—the 100 per cent picture of perfect fellowship between every citizen beneath the flag."

Stone Mountain Memorial. Referring to the memorial which is being cut in Stone Mountain by Gutzon Borglum, Congressman Upshaw said:

"I am proud to represent a district in congress whose far-visioned sentiment has made possible this impressive memorial of deathless valor. The reverent contemplation of such a lofty character as that of Robert E. Lee, ladies and gentlemen, as graven in history's supreme monument at Stone Mountain, will make us daily better men and women, and the pilgrimage of millions from this land and all other lands to this mecca of memories—the supreme memorial—in the history of mankind will send the purest streams of patriotic and God-fearing inspiration to all parts of the civilized world."

Constitution Ambiguous. Mr. Upshaw quoted the words of the late President Harding who, speaking at the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial, said:

"The constitution that could be wrenched out of a baptism of blood, and followed this with the words of President Coolidge, spoken at Arlington last Sunday: 'They were all Americans—all contending for what they believed were their rights.'"

Concluding his speech, Congressman Upshaw said:

"What of Gettysburg's annual memorial and the solidarity of the Union for which the name of Gettysburg stands? We can only meet and solve the vexing problems of these testing times by an Americanism that is unselfish, that is loyal, that is sober, that is reverent and God-fearing. Set on the cross and Christ on the throne in every human heart is the hope of both church and state."

Loyalty to Flag Essential. "Loyalty to the flag is essential to the authority of the flag—for there is no place beneath the American flag for the heart that does not love it and the arm that will not defend it."

It is ours to illustrate by voice and vote by precept and practice, through the highest official and the humblest citizen the integrity of our constitution, the majesty of our laws, the personal and national righteousness which alone exalteth a nation.

"Lincoln's immortal declaration: 'That Americans must live that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth,' constitutes America's sacred challenge today. This is the heritage bequeathed to your generation and all the generations that are to follow."

"Ah, this Gettysburg Memorial means that we will not forget. We will not break faith with those who died, nor forget that they died for us—for our homes, for our ideals, for the very soul of our national life."

Enrollment for the Summer Term Begins With a Rush at The Southern Business College

June 2d, 9th and 16th Classes Are Formed for the Summer Session.

Enroll now for Business Courses. The Southern Business College runs throughout the summer, giving the young people who have been attending the literary schools and colleges the opportunity to prepare and be ready for commercial positions during the coming fall.

The attendance this summer promises to be the largest in the history of the Southern. Many young men and young women do not care to waste two or three months, after finishing their literary schooling, passing through a "do-nothing" vacation. They realize that they can better acquire a knowledge of Business, shorthand, bookkeeping, banking, typewriting and varied commercial branches, when they are "fresh from school."

Then, too, the matter of positions is another important reason for beginning a Business Course in June. The fall and winter months are the best periods of the year in which to find ready employment.

Enroll June 2, or the 9th, or the 16th, and be ready for the full rush of business. Make application for entrance as soon as possible. Address A. C. Briscoe, Pres., or L. W. Arnold, Vice Pres., 11 Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

A. C. BRISCOE, President Southern Shortland and Business University.

Rome, May 30.—An Italian warship is being held in readiness at Brindisi to proceed to Albania, where revolutionary troubles are increasing, according to the Brindisi correspondent of the Tribune.

The Tribune states it is difficult to obtain accurate information about the Albanian situation, but that it is known the Italian government is watching carefully all developments there. For several weeks, revolutionary forces have been attempting the overthrow of the Tirana government.

Flood Casts Body Ashore and Bares Secret of Death

Constitution Bureau, Masonic Temple Annex, Phone 1006

Rome, Ga., May 30.—(Special.)—Four negroes are held in jail here tonight in connection with the finding last yesterday of the body of Andy Barnett, negro boy, on the bank of Big Cedar creek, three miles from Cave Springs, where flood waters, caused by recent rains, had washed it ashore.

A steel plough and an iron wagon axle were washed to the body and a bullet hole in the chest led to the belief that the negro had been killed and his body washed with the iron and thrown into the stream.

McKinley McGhee was arrested today in Gadsden, Ala., and Mose Keith, Henry Brown and Z. D. Washington were arrested here early today. The three men are said to have confessed to officers that they helped the weights to the body after McGhee had shot the man in an argument over a negro woman on Monday night following Easter Sunday.

The shooting is said to have grown out of an altercation at an Easter egg hunt.

JAPANESE BOYCOTT AMERICAN GOODS

Tokio, May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Anti-American feeling engendered by enactment of the United States immigration law with its Japanese exclusion provision threatens to become more widespread and intense, backed as it is by the Jingo press and a small group of nationalist publicists, politicians, former service men and retired officers of the army and navy.

Official Japan, represented by the Kiyouwa government, absolutely opposes any retaliatory measures, and although Viscount Kato remains silent upon this point, it is generally believed in high quarters that the new ministry he is expected to form within the fortnight will continue the same policy.

With this contradiction of public and certain private opinion so evident, Japanese officials expressly regret that they are unable entirely to control the anti-American expressions which are outcropping almost daily in public meetings, published editorials, and newspaper advertisements.

Protagonists in the Japanese press are endeavoring to persuade the public to refuse to purchase American goods and demand instead either Japanese or European substitutes.

Bar to Luxuries.

In this connection, the vernacular press insists there is a significant movement under way to prohibit importation of all luxuries. Officials admit such a measure has been and is being considered, merely as a means of equalization of exports and imports.

The margin imports reached a half-billion yen since the first of the year, and has been giving officials some worry. It is stated officially, however, the discussion of the proposed bar to luxuries has not yet reached a tangible stage and is still far from being adopted as a policy.

Furthermore, it is added, even if adopted, the ban of luxuries will not be in any sense discriminatory, or connected even distantly with the American exclusion issue; the adoption will be solely to the necessities of the domestic economic situation.

Some papers, however, still insist that the move to restrict imports is a direct result of the American immigration policy.

Meetings Planned.

The group of nationalist publicists, headed by Shinkichi Uyesugi, professor of political science at the Imperial Tokyo university, is planning a series of what they call "national spirit meetings" with the avowed purpose of arousing the national Japanese spirit against the exclusion measure.

One of these meetings has been called for June 6, in the great wrestling hall here, one of the largest meeting places in the city. The date was selected, Uyesugi explained today, because it is that date upon which Ambassador Woods (the retiring American ambassador) will leave.

The nationalists, he explained, do not wish to embarrass the ambassador, "whose sympathy for the Japanese makes it impossible for the Japanese to take resolute measures while he is here."

Uyesugi and his followers are planning similar meetings to be held in the other principal cities of the empire during the month of June.

Reservists of the Japanese army also are reported to be active in the anti-exclusion campaign. According to the vernacular newspapers, the Kyoto Reservists' association has voted to use to fight exclusion the funds it has raised for celebration of the next month of the wedding of the prince-regent.

SCHURMAN IS SLATED AS WOODS' SUCCESSOR

Tokio, May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—There is reason to believe that the Japanese foreign office has been asked by the American government whether Jacob Gould Schurman, now minister to China, will be acceptable as ambassador to Japan to succeed Cyrus E. Woods, who resigned recently.

Washington, May 30.—Official confirmation of the report that Minister Schurman at Peking had been selected to succeed Ambassador Woods at Tokyo was lacking today, and Secretary Hughes refused to comment in any way. There was little disposition in diplomatic circles, however, to doubt that Mr. Schurman's name was under consideration at Tokyo or that it would be acceptable to the Japanese government.

Administration officials have manifested repeatedly the desire to take every possible means of impressing on the Japanese government and people the friendly sentiments of the Washington government and it is believed the prompt filling of the Tokyo post would aid this purpose.

Dr. Schurman has long been known as a student of Far Eastern affairs who viewed sympathetically the problems of the nations there. He spent considerable time in Japan in 1920, making a number of public addresses and was well received. The experience of Dr. Schurman at the Peking legation has given him first-hand knowledge of the problems of the Far East which would be of utmost value to him.

In view of the circumstances and particularly because he is already virtually on the scene, the word from Tokyo today caused little surprise despite official reticence in Washington.

SOLDIER BADLY CUT; DOESN'T KNOW WHY

J. J. Jaques, a soldier at Fort McPherson, was taken to Grady Friday night suffering from knife wounds in the right arm and stomach resulting from an argument with a stranger.

Jaques, according to his statement to Call Officers W. A. Goode and W. F. Bullard, met a stranger, whom he believes to be a Syrian, on Ivy street, and engaged him in conversation.

Jaques' inability to understand the foreigner's conversation led to the argument which ended when the stranger attacked the soldier with a long-bladed knife. No arrests have been made.

SERVICES ON STREETS REPEATED THURSDAY

Evangelistic services upon the streets, conducted by Rev. W. L. Hambrick and members of his church, the Central Baptist, were so successful last Tuesday night that similar services will be held next Thursday evening at Hood and Windsor streets and at Formwalt and Woodward avenues.

These services, which are conducted from a truck at street corners, have received the sanction of Mayor Sims and the acting chief of police.

Early this week, Rev. Hambrick and his church workers were heard

Two-score buildings were wrecked at Cowlington, while seven residences and half a dozen barns were demolished at Gans, the motorist said.

WORLD COURT SITUATION.

Both parties have been playing politics with the world court proposal. The senate committee recently reported out a resolution for "adhering to the court of international justice." The chairman, Senator Lodge, shoved his own Hague tribunal scheme into a pigeonhole and voted with the majority. Senator Johnson, alone of the republicans, opposed it. The democrats voted solidly against the proposal and set to work preparing a minority report setting forth its position.

In the meantime the senate is in the last days of the session, as the republican convention meets on June 10, and a number of senators have "serious business at home" before the November elections. No person knows better than a senator that to bring so important a measure as that involving the international relations of this country before the senate during the jam of the closing days, or during the anxious tension of a pre-convention week, means its defeat by default—and that is precisely what the senate is seeking.

It is not to be assumed, therefore, that there will be any decisive action at this time, favorable or unfavorable, to American support of the world court.

The whole attitude of the republicans is to appease the multitudes who are in favor of international cooperation, looking to the rehabilitation of Europe and to the economic welfare of this country, and to do this without offending the isolationists, and even that more ultra group that believes in entering wholeheartedly into the league of nations.

It is a sorry political game, unworthy of a great deliberative body and unworthy of this nation. President Coolidge so denounced the scheme in his Arlington address Friday, in urging the original plan. If the majority of the senate favors the Harding-Coolidge plan of a world court then it is the solemn, sacred duty of the senate majority to say so and say it frankly. And if it is too late to enact any definite policy now, to go before the people, at least, with a declaration of definite policy.

It is lamentable to contemplate the low ebb of political demagoguery to which the congress of this nation has drifted; and particularly is this true—sad to relate—as to the upper branch of congress.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lupton, of Chattanooga, the former of whom has donated altogether approximately $300,000 to the building of a greater Oglethorpe University, are in Atlanta attending commencement, and to be present this afternoon at the breaking of dirt upon the site of the two new Lupton buildings, which will shortly be under construction.

Mrs. Lupton will personally run the furrow outlining the spot on the campus on which these two buildings will stand.

This evening the visitors will be the honor guests at a banquet and reception at the Capital City club. "Lupton Hall," built in the memory of Mr. Lupton's mother, is completed, and is one of the handsomest college structures in the south, in design, appointment and attractiveness of material used.

The two buildings to be erected will follow the same architectural design, thus presenting a symmetry that will be artistically pleasing.

One of these buildings will bear the inscription "built for love of his wife," and the other "built as an inspiration for his boy."

There must be something singularly satisfying to one who thus builds to noble and enlightening service while he yet lives to see the fruition of that service.

That it will continue to serve through the generations to come is a heartening thought to carry through life, and a strengthening knowledge when the day of passing comes.

The world is made the better by the inspiration of men like Mr. Lupton, whose generosity has made it possible for Oglethorpe to become one of the great educational institutions in this country.

A SHAMEFUL PROCEEDING.

"Gaston B. Means Uncorks Fresh List of Sensations Involving High Federal Officials," says a headline, justified by a recital of this same Means' testimony Thursday before the Daugherty investigating committee.

The testimony, "under oath," of this same Means, who has been the senate prosecutors' star witness throughout the gamut of investigations that have come out of the political brain-storm that has gripped Washington since the presidential year dawned, ran the sweep of the North American continent, and even declared the National Society for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico had employed Japanese interests to foment the Mexican revolution.

This is the same Means who was tried and acquitted of the murder of a Mrs. King, his rich benefactress, in Concord, N. C., and who subsequently attempted to secure possession of a portion of her estate.

He is the same Means who has boasted "under oath" of his connection with transactions in Washington that his own testimony has indicted as shady, if not criminal.

He is the same Means who is under indictment in New York today for a serious federal offense. He admitted on the witness stand that he has unsettled grudges against men who come under the ban of his indictments.

He has not supported one charge that he has made with even reasonable documentary evidence, nor has he offered any proof other than his own words, under an oath made by one whose record in the criminal courts of this country do not establish either good character or unimpeachable veracity.

It is a shame that there are senators who would blacken the lives of good men, and stick a dirk into the characters of unselfish officials who are serving the country ably and efficiently, as is Secretary Mellon, by such unsupported testimony.

It shows the depths to which political footballing has degenerated in this country.

DEATH OF JACOB PHINIZY.

In the death, at his home in Augusta Friday, of Jacob Phinizy, Georgia loses one of its most useful citizens, developers and financiers, and his home city a man who had been for two score years foremost in every civic, commercial and progressive worthwhile enterprise.

For a quarter of a century Mr. Phinizy had been president of the Georgia Railroad and Banking company. He was largely interested in the textile industry, being president of several mills.

At one time Mr. Phinizy took a deep interest in Augusta municipal politics, and served as mayor for a number of terms.

Few men in the business life of Georgia have left a more enviable record for honest dealing, or one more worthy of emulation for industry, conservatism and economic wisdom.

ON THE MARKETS.

With the practical assurance of the tax bill becoming a law already discounted and with no other bills possible legislation in sight that would either help or harm the stock market has settled into a trading market, with the last session showing this most decidedly, fluctuations being held to the narrowest margins.

There is one bright spot on the horizon and one of the brightest that has loomed for some time, and that is the assured adjournment of congress soon. With the passing out of the long term of the 68th congress, there will no doubt come into the market a feeling of great relief, and business confidence will be restored to a marked degree.

Brokers are not overly optimistic about an upward trend in prices, but there are many who advise the buying of good strong securities at any break in the market.

There is, however, an absence of any advice to take on at the present time the highly speculative accounts. This is not due to a feeling of fear for those issues, but because of the advantage of securing the stronger stocks.

There are many who watch good stocks go up for three or four days in succession, and thus think an upward advance has started. Then when they look up the break comes.

The right time to take securities in this present market is on the breaks and not on the supposedly upward trend.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Trying To Avert War.

The battle of the rays is on. Demon rays versus diabolical rays. Both are the patient work of years of research and intensive application in the laboratories. War offices in Europe are all agog with the situation. Experts and staff observers are trying out the effectiveness in France, England, Germany and Sweden. For there are four varieties of the death ray known at present. The battle of rays presents one phase of European thought and endeavor at the present time. Some people are even elated over the fact that such deadly agents have been invented. They hope that their existence will make war impossible. Reason will end war and war will end sense and no armaments of any kind.

Latin Alliance Going Strong.

Exchange professors are on the way from Spain to South American republics and vice versa. A similar arrangement has been established between Italy and South American countries and Mussolini's "ambassadors of culture" are traveling all over the world. It all indicates that the world is not so far from what when he predicted that after the war there would come a closer union between countries of Latin origin. Among the ladies social life is becoming quite formidable, if we are to believe the pronouncements that come from Rome or Madrid. It has a dual purpose, cultural and political. A strange combination.

Millerand To Stay?

The campaign against President Millerand is growing stronger. The opposition is based on M. Millerand's past actions, when he interfered in the political situation in favor of the blue national. In France the president is required to remain neutral in politics by placing himself above party considerations. This, the members of the right wing of the Chamber of Deputies are saying, is unpardonable crime. Leaders could force the president to resign by refusing to form a cabinet. This was done in the case of President Jules Grévy in 1887. But already there is the slightest indication of a break in the ranks of the left, who were so solid in their opposition to M. Poincaré. It is said in Paris that M. Herriot has been to the Elysee to see M. Millerand and that they have reached an agreement. And that agreement is Herriot, prime minister, and Millerand to continue as president of the republic.

Southcoites Petition Established Church.

Joanna Southcoite's mysterious chest of writings has again been brought to the attention of the bishops of the Church of England. The church has been in it there vaults somewhere, the venerable clergyman have persistently refused during the past 100 years to examine the contents. Joanna's followers, who number more than 100,000 in the United States, England and Canada, have submitted a petition to the archbishop of Canterbury to open the chest and examine the manuscripts. They claim that a letter written by Joanna to the archbishop in 1801, in which she asked him to open the chest and examine the manuscripts, and that she had been visited by the "Lord of heaven." Now if the bishops look a sporting chance and opened the box and made public the manuscripts and proved that Joanna labored under a delusion, would her followers be content? That doubtful, and there are many instances in the past to assume that a new sect would spring up and flourish like a young bay tree.

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEW EYES.

Often these eyes of mine begin to ache—and I say to myself that I wish I had new eyes.

But no one as yet has been given new physical eyes. We have to do the best we can with what we have.

The wonderful formations that we see as eyes when we look into the mirror are really not what we use for sight, however. We actually see with our minds, and our hearts somehow step up to give suggestions when something big is about to be seen.

And as the mind has new eyes, and see new things, and learn to interpret the bubbling acts of a changing human lot, we must put our minds and hearts in good order and give them healthy lives in which to live.

Each morning when I see a new glory breaking from behind the trees, I hope for new feelings, new sight, new understanding, and I tell my new eyes to use in seeing a new world that wasn't around at all yesterday.

"Grant unto me, O God, a new set of eyes so that I may know the things that are true. Not only help me to see—but make me see."

That would be my prayer as each day lifted itself from its slumber and its sleep.

Things get so tired seeing the same things year in and out. But new eyes every once in a while would show us new beauties, new wonders, new people with interesting personalities.

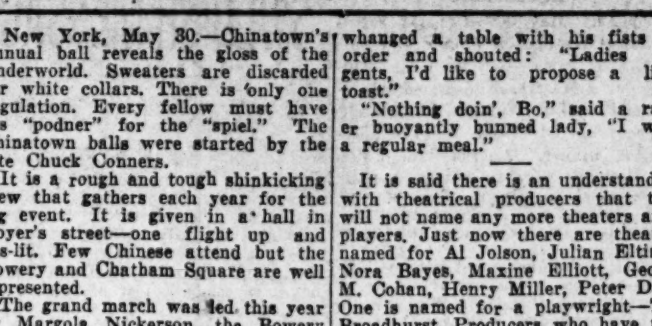

How tired are these eyes right now! I will put them to sleep. And as the morning sun touches our bed covers, I will arise, and as I look out the window, I will determine in my heart to make the most of my new eyes, rewarmed and fondled by the fingers of the invisible God who always cares for tired eyes.

And I will say another prayer: "Be for me a clean mind, a washed heart, and—new eyes."

WORLD COURT SITUATION.

Both parties have been playing politics with the world court proposal. The senate committee recently reported out a resolution for "adhering to the court of international justice." The chairman, Senator Lodge, shoved his own Hague tribunal scheme into a pigeonhole and voted with the majority. Senator Johnson, alone of the republicans, opposed it. The democrats voted solidly against the proposal and set to work preparing a minority report setting forth its position.

In the meantime the senate is in the last days of the session, as the republican convention meets on June 10, and a number of senators have "serious business at home" before the November elections. No person knows better than a senator that to bring so important a measure as that involving the international relations of this country before the senate during the jam of the closing days, or during the anxious tension of a pre-convention week, means its defeat by default—and that is precisely what the senate is seeking.

It is not to be assumed, therefore, that there will be any decisive action at this time, favorable or unfavorable, to American support of the world court.

The whole attitude of the republicans is to appease the multitudes who are in favor of international cooperation, looking to the rehabilitation of Europe and to the economic welfare of this country, and to do this without offending the isolationists, and even that more ultra group that believes in entering wholeheartedly into the league of nations.

It is a sorry political game, unworthy of a great deliberative body and unworthy of this nation. President Coolidge so denounced the scheme in his Arlington address Friday, in urging the original plan. If the majority of the senate favors the Harding-Coolidge plan of a world court then it is the solemn, sacred duty of the senate majority to say so and say it frankly. And if it is too late to enact any definite policy now, to go before the people, at least, with a declaration of definite policy.

It is lamentable to contemplate the low ebb of political demagoguery to which the congress of this nation has drifted; and particularly is this true—sad to relate—as to the upper branch of congress.

SUSPECT CONFESSES KILLING EX-GEORGIAN

Gastonia, N. C., May 30.—Jim Wilson, 22, arrested here this afternoon as a suspect in the killing of J. H. Fletcher near here last Monday, confessed tonight to the killing. He asserted, according to officers, that he shot Fletcher after the pair had quarreled, and after Fletcher had threatened and shot at him with a pistol.

Fletcher's body was found last Tuesday afternoon at the one-room cabin six miles from here where he lived alone. Death had been caused by a load from a shotgun fired into the man's back. In one hand was grasped a pistol with three shells exploded.

According to the story told officers by Wilson, he had spent Monday night with Fletcher at the cabin. During the night, he asserted, they quarreled and he decided to leave. Fletcher threatened him with a pistol and he picked up the man's shotgun and ran from the house, Fletcher firing at him as he left. He asserted he went to the back door of the cabin.

How to build up your Weight

To be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but at the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Graduation Gifts For Boys and Girls

Just as a suggestion to assist you in your selection of graduation gifts let us mention those lovely, valuable and lasting gifts which seem to have the most universal appeal.

For a boy, a handsome strap or pocket watch, a solid gold belt buckle, engraved and engine-turned, a cigarette case in solid gold or Sterling silver, are among the most popular choices for graduation gifts.

For a girl a handsome set of Sterling silver toiletware, a dainty platinum wrist watch, a gold or Sterling silver mesh bag, a dorian in 14-k. gold, Sterling silver, or enamel, are all beautifully appropriate.

and shot at Fletcher through a hole, causing his death. In his first statement to police this afternoon, he implicated another man, but later changed his story and admitted that he alone killed the man, according to police officials.

Wilson was captured this afternoon when he tried to sell a shotgun to a barber in the outskirts of town. According to officers, Fletcher's shotgun had been stolen two or three days prior to last Monday. Tonight they expressed disbelief in Wilson's story because, they said, the shotgun which he claimed to have picked up in the cabin, previously had been reported stolen.

Fletcher's former home was at Forest, Ga., and he was a carpenter. Wilson asserted he had only one living relative, a step-father at Augusta, Ga. He was unemployed.

MISSISSIPPI FAILS TO PLEDGE DELEGATES

Jackson, Miss., May 30.—Mississippi's delegation will go to the national democratic convention in New York unimpaired for a presidential nomination, but with instructions to vote as a unit. This was decided at the state convention held here today.

Sixteen district delegates and eight delegates-at-large with half a vote each were chosen. The delegates-at-large are: Governor Henry L. Whitfield, Senator Pat Harrison, Senator Hubert D. Stephens, Attorney General Rush M. Koss, Thomas L. Bailey, speaker of the house of representatives; Mrs. B. F. Saunders, of Bolivar county; Mrs. Nellie Somerville, of Washington county, and Mrs. Viola Lake of Hinds county.

Henry L. Minor of Neshoba county was named national committeeman to succeed Oscar Johnston, and Mrs. Daisy McLaurin Stephens, of Rankin county, national committee woman, succeeding Mrs. Ernest Brown.

Former Governor E. F. Noel, said to have been supported by the Ku Klux Klan, was elected temporary chairman of today's convention, replacing Representative Webber Wilson by a vote of 193 to 98.

Mr. Noel, in his keynote speech, urged the delegates to support the opposition any presidential aspirant who is not for strict enforcement of the prohibition laws.

TAX REDUCTION BILL INDORSED BY M'ADOO

Washington, May 30.—Indorsing the tax reduction bill now before President Coolidge, William G. McAdoo today gave credit for the measure to democrats and "progressives" in congress.

In a message to Representative Garner, Texas, leader of the democratic tax fight in the house, Mr. McAdoo declared the bill "confers principal benefits of tax reduction upon the great body of taxpayers instead of discriminating unjustly in favor of the privileged class as proposed by the Mellon plan."

"You and your colleagues," the message continued, "have strikingly demonstrated in the new revenue bill the value of democratic leadership during this leadership period of American history. Throughout the length and breadth of the land the people understand the situation at Washington and realize that only through the return of democratic leadership can control of the government be restored and administered again in the interest of all the people."

The tax bill sharply defined the contest between privilege and reaction on one hand and true democracy and progress on the other. Democracy triumphed over privilege as it will triumph even more effectively over privilege in November, 1924."

MEASURE IS REPORTED TO MEET BONUS COST

Washington, May 30.—An appropriation of $131,943,138 to meet the estimated cost of the soldiers' bonus until July 1, 1925, is proposed in a deficiency bill reported today by the house appropriations committee. Other items bring the measure's total up to $138,100,417, or $1,588,408 less than budget estimates.

To carry out provisions of the bonus law the veterans' bureau would receive $1,188,500 for administrative expenses, $20,029,598 for adjusted service and dependent pay, and $100,000,000 for its adjusted compensation fund. In addition, the general accounting office will be allotted $75,240, the navy department $450,000 and the war department $2,600,000 for administrative expenses in connection with the act.

The bill carries $25,200,100 for the pay of personnel and operating expenses of the charged coast guard fleet operating against rum runners, $80,000 for more frequent cotton crop and ginning reports, $1,000,000 for road construction in national parks, $3,500,000 for the eradication of the foot and mouth disease among live stock, $2,500,000 for expenses incident to the scrapping of naval vessels.

WAR ORPHANS MARCH IN MEMORIAL PARADE

Paris, May 30.—The spectacle of 800 French war orphans, bearing American flags, marching past the United States military cemetery at Surresnes to the tune of the revolutionary anthem "Les Girondins," the chorus of which is "To die for one's country—this is the most beautiful fate, the most worthy of envy," was the most touching part of the Paris celebration of the American national Memorial day today.

The youngsters were reviewed by no less a person than General Mangin, and as the band struck up the stirring old song, they marched erectly with shining faces with a demeanor even more military than that of the French infantry regiment, cavalry detachment and marines platoon which were detailed to honor the American dead lying in the lofty cemetery perched upon a hilltop facing the Arc de Triomphe and the Eiffel tower loom up hazily and almost insignificantly in the distance.

The ceremony was attended by a large crowd of Americans and French, C. A. Irwin, of Denver, whose son is buried at Surresnes, made a moving address after which a choir of 30 young girls from the normal school of the Seine department sang the "Apostrophe" by Berlioz. Father Hennick, of Pittsburgh, recited the invocation. Sheldon Whitehouse, counselor of the American embassy, representing Ambassador Herrick, briefly recalled the "spirits that went forth from Chateau Thierry and the Argonne are one with those of Gettysburg and Santiago." General Mangin, in a brief address, recalled the role of American expeditionary forces, mentioning that six American divisions were ready to attack under his orders in the Lorraine, November 14, 1918, an attack which he said "the peace armistice unfortunately stopped."

E. A. SCHILLER AND FRIEDMAN HERE ON TOUR

E. A. Schiller, general representative of Loew's, Incorporated, and member of the board of directors of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures corporation, and Leopold Friedman, head of the legal department of Loew's Incorporated, New York, arrived in Atlanta Friday from Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Schiller and Mr. Friedman are on a tour of inspection of the theaters, and will remain in Atlanta for several days.

Commenting on the recent amalgamation of the Metro Pictures Corporation and the Goldwyn-Consolidated Pictures corporation, Mr. Schiller declared that a statement would be issued very shortly, which would outline the policy of the big corporation. This statement, Mr. Schiller declared, would be of interest to the public as well as the trade, as it will tell how the big pictures now being made by the new corporation will be distributed.

Mr. Schiller said that the recent full-week picture inaugurated by Loew's, which was put into effect several months ago at Loew's Grand theater of this city, was meeting with much success, the majority of patrons being greatly in favor of it. It has been the means of bringing bigger acts to Atlanta, he declared, with still larger ones booked for the near future.

Washington, May 30.—Secretary Mellon will be given opportunity as soon as practicable to answer before the Senate Finance committee the testimony of Gaston B. Means, it was announced today by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, the committee's prosecutor. Means will be recalled tomorrow for cross-examination by counsel for the former attorney general and then the committee will resume its inquiry into certain matters touching the alien property custodian's office which were taken up early in the week. Mark Chastain, 18, of Lula, Ga., Thursday was given the heaviest penalty imposed since the opening of the war on traffic law violators when, in addition to being fined $100 and costs for speeding, he was sentenced to serve ten days in the stockade.

The stockade penalty marks the first of the campaign, and is in line with the relentless program mapped out by police in the drive to eliminate traffic violations.

TWO ARE KILLED WHEN GASOLINE TANK EXPLODES

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 30.—Two men were killed and two boats valued at $20,000 were destroyed at Tarpon Springs today when a 1,000-gallon gasoline tank exploded while being filled.

The two men, Michael Konstantine, owner of the boat Effie, and Alexander Filaretos, engaged in filling the tank, were blown into the air when the tank exploded. Konstantine struck the pier and fell into the water, while his companion was blown against the boat's mast, crushing in his ribs. Konstantine, who was taken from the water, was found to have both legs broken and other injuries. They died in a sanitarium tonight.

witness who had not qualified as an expert.

Bishop Brown took the stand amid a stir of interest in the crowded hall of Trinity cathedral. His tall, white-haired figure was clad in clerical black, relieved by the white band of his right collar, a rose in his button-hole and the gray gloves which he had worn throughout the proceedings. He turned toward the stenographers, explaining smilingly that his 60 years had made his voice a bit uncertain.

New York, May 30.—Harry L. Hoffman announced today that he will seek an appeal from the verdict of the jury which convicted him of the murder of 30-year-old David A. Bauer on Staten Island in March. Hoffman made this decision after a talk with his wife and two brothers and his attorney, Alfred W. Norton.

Hoffman said he was sent to Sing Sing tomorrow to begin his sentence of from 20 years to life.

WIFE ESTIMATES WORTH OF LABOR AT $115,485.50

New York, May 30.—"I estimate the worth of my labor conservatively at $115,485.50, none of which I have ever collected. But I still love my husband and children and wouldn't mind starting all over again."

That is the reply of one woman to a questionnaire sent out recently by a farm magazine on "How Much Is a Woman Worth?"

In her 30 years down on the farm, the woman wrote, she has served 225,426 meals, made 33,100 loaves of bread, baked 5,020 cakes and 7,000 pies, canned 1,550 quarts of fruit, raised 7,660 chickens, churned 5,450 pounds of butter and put in 34,461 hours sweeping, washing and scrubbing.

15-DAY TENT MEETING WILL START SUNDAY

CUTS WAY TO LIBERTY WITH BUTCHER KNIFE

Norfolk, Va., May 30.—Former Policeman J. B. Parker, convicted of the theft of an automobile, escaped from the Norfolk city jail late this afternoon, but was captured later. He used a butcher knife to combat trustees who pursued him, but was finally subdued by police. Parker, besides his conviction here, is also wanted for an alleged offense in Guilford county, North Carolina.

Marine Biological Laboratory on Firm Foundation.

The finest equipment for biological research in the world has been made possible by a gift of $1,400,000 to the Woods Hole (Mass.) Marine Biological laboratory. A combined laboratory and library building, to cost about $800,000, will be constructed at once which with the present facilities will form an ideal plant for the institutions interested in this work. The gift was a joint contribution from the Rockefeller foundation, from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., from the Friendship fund endowed by Charles R. Crane, and from the Carnegie corporation. The laboratory was planned on a national cooperative basis, as it is open to all American institutions. During 1923, 70 universities and research organizations contributed to its support.

“Death Ray” Sold to English Government for $1,500,000

Paris, May 30.—At the very moment when it seemed that Grindell Matthews, English inventor, was about to abandon his country and sell to France what he believes may be the most devastating war engine of the ages, a sudden twist in the erratic inventor's movements has placed the "death ray" in English hands.

The ray is to be developed by an English company, and Matthews happily and a bit proudly declares that his machine will make England safe from all aerial attack.

Thus, suddenly and dramatically, ends one of the most fantastic stories that ever started the chancelleries of Europe. It is now believed that from the beginning the inventor, finding himself a prophet without honor in his own country, played a "chew and despatch" game in France to force his reluctant countrymen to accept his invention.

Many Ridicule Ray.

Many scientists and statesmen in Europe frankly ridicule the "death ray." The British government apparently still looks askance at the invention. But Matthews, declaring that he is convinced of the claim that development of the machine will produce a terrifying

Tech High Gives 180 Letters at Banquet

Representatives of School In All Branches of Sport Also Are Awarded Sweaters

The annual Tech High letterman banquet was held last night at a downtown cafe, where more than 180 members of the various organizations of the school were gathered together. A total of 180 sweaters were given to the members of the football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming, golf, tennis, rifle, literary and other organizations of the school.

In addition to the 180 sweaters there were more than 180 letters awarded to the members of the student body who have represented the school at various times during the year that is nearing its end.

There were many speeches delivered during the banquet. Among the principal speakers were Coaches Tolbert and Alexander, of the football team, and Frank Kolp, of the track team.

The elections of the captains for the coming year have already been held in several cases and the others will be announced before the end of the current school term.

Every phase of activity during the school term was clearly reviewed last night and it was near the midnight hour when the banquet was called to a halt.

Some of the outstanding athletes at Tech High were given two and even three sweaters for their services during the athletic season. Football was awarded a sweater in football, basketball and baseball. Lutz was awarded a sweater in both football and basketball.

Organizations that shared in the gifts last night were, football, basketball, baseball, swimming, track, tennis, golf, orchestra, band, lunch, literary and rifle team, and those connected with the school publications.

Prison Indians Defeat K. P.'s

The Indians of the federal prison won from the K. P.'s at Cox park by the score of 1 to 0 yesterday afternoon.

From the outset it was a great pitchers' duel between Moore of the Indians, and Scott of the K. P.'s.

The one tally of the day was scored by Reed, who singled to right, stole second and came home on a hit.

The Indians will play the Rockdale at Inman park at 3 o'clock today.

The batteries for yesterday's game were: Moore and Johnson for the Indians; Scott and Stark for K. P.'s.

Barnett Fights Tonight in Cuba

Battling Barnett, who fights under the management of Walk Miller, but who was loaned to Max Abelson for a fight with Cassala, Cuban lightweight, meets that boxer tonight in an Havana, Cuba, ring. This is Barnett's second fight since coming back under his old manager, under whose direction he was piloted to twenty-seven straight victories.

Barnett in the fight tonight is pinch-hitting for Lew Silver, who was scheduled to meet Cassala, but who was forced to give up the fight due to injuries and illness. Abelson will direct his activities against the Cuban.

YALE WINS IN FIRST STAGE OF MEET

Harvard Stadium, Cambridge, Mass., May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Yale nosed out Leinard Stanford in the first stage of the brilliant east-west struggle for intercollegiate championship tonight, marked by two record-breaking performances. The Blue gained 14 qualifying places in the finals tomorrow as a result of preliminary tests while Stanford placed 13.

Pennsylvania and California, three-time champions, were next with ten qualifiers each. Princeton placed nine men; Southern California eight, and Penn State and Harvard each seven. The others included Dartmouth six; Cornell five; Boston College, Georgetown and Johns Hopkins three; Syracuse, Columbia and M. I. T. two each; Amhurst, Colgate and Williams, one each.

Though all six qualifiers in the discus were scipied, the former record, it was announced that they might not be recognized because of the high wind aiding the athletes.

An unheralded starter, Arthur, of Stanford, set the best mark, with 154 feet 8 1/2 inches, over 14 feet beyond the old record of 140 feet 1 1/2 inch, set in 1922 by Harlan, of Stanford.

A 25-year-old champion mark fell in the broad jump when Bill Conn, Yale star and 1923 champion, leaped 24 feet 5 1/2 inches to supplant the mark of 24 feet 4 1/2 inches made by A. C. Kranzlein, of Penn., in 1923.

Fine Fight Card Given at Prison

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The boxing bouts held at the Federal prison yesterday were the best seen at that institution in some time according to the many experts there.

The first bout, between Redmond and Coleman, colored lightweights, was won by Coleman in the third round.

The second bout was between Garcia and Wozniak, white welterweights, and went four rounds, Wozniak getting the decision.

The sixth bout was the best of the day and was between Kane and Imondo for the white welterweight championship of the institution. It was a great battle for the scheduled eight rounds. Kane, a new fighter at the prison, won the decision over Imondo, who has been a favorite for many months.

The last and main bout was between Carter and Walker for the heavyweight championship of the prison.

Carter beat Walker to the punch in the last of the third and the fourth round, but he did not last more than a minute of the fourth round, and Carter was declared the heavyweight champion of the institution.

The judges were Schwartz and Kief. The referees were Connell and Siffin.

'Diving' in Jump Will Be Barred

Boston, May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—Steps to eliminate the "diving" or so-called "western roll" style of high jumping among candidates for the American Olympic team, as a result of its recent protest by French athletic officials, were taken tonight by the Association of College Track Coaches at its annual meeting.

This type of jumping, whose exponents include such stars as Harold Osborne, world's indoor record-holder, and D. V. Alberts, both of Chicago, has been a subject of controversy for some time. Recently it resulted in formal action by France to have the council of the International Olympic committee determine its legality and though it was indicated the protest would not be sustained, American coaches feel that every effort should be made to avoid events that might lead to a ban on the chances of Yankee victory at Paris.

The coaches believe that most of the jumpers affecting a diving style over the bar can, by concentrating on their technique, alter their form to avoid the possible question.

Tourney Play on At Brookhaven

Qualifying rounds will start today at Brookhaven for the tournament in which the Gude-Nix trophy is offered. The tournament is the first of a number to be played over the Brookhaven course this summer.

Indications point to a number of players to make three flights of 16 players each. However, if the number exceeds the requirements for three flights, another flight will be held.

PRINCETON BEATS ARIZONA POLO TEAM

New York, May 30.—Princeton defeated the University of Arizona quarter in the first game of the intercollegiate polo championship at Fort Hamilton today, 6 to 2. The Tigers displayed a brilliant individual attack, their long and accurate shooting bewildering the visitors.

VILLA RETAINS FLYWEIGHT TITLE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 30.—Drilling in his most spectacular style with a car which L. L. Corum piloted 255 miles, Joe Boyer, after his own car had been put to one side, won the 500-mile international sweepstakes here today in a Duesenberg.

Boyer's record for the race was 98.24 miles an hour, the previous record being that of Jimmy Murphy in 1922 of 94.47. Boyer's time was 5:05:23.51.

Forcing the pace after having a wonderful run of luck in the first 309 miles of the race, Earl Cooper, of a Studebaker Special, finished second, just a little over a minute behind Boyer.

Third money went to Jimmy Murphy, who set the early pace at close to 100 miles an hour, but who had a lot of tough luck with tires at a stage when Cooper and Boyer were moving at their fastest gait.

Fourth money went to Benji Hill, fifth, Fred DePaulo sixth, Fred Corum seventh, Ira Vail eighth, Tony Mourie ninth and Bob McElmough tenth.

The race was the most thrilling in the history of the speedway as there never was a time when at least two or three drivers did not look as if they had a chance to win up to the last ten miles and even then a tire change or any happening to Boyer would have meant the loss of the $20,000 first prize to him.

What was said by Carl G. Fisher to be the largest crowd which ever saw the race in fact came to witness the race and saw an occupant and how thousands even saw anything is hard to guess.

The race was truly run and the best car with the best luck won. While Corum was at the wheel of the super-speed creation it was always close to the leaders. It was in third place at the end of 100 laps, or just a bit over half way, when it was stopped for tires and supplies. Boyer, the star of the Duesenberg outfit, had all chances of winning when he stripped a pin off the super-charger, which attached to his car, so when Corum stopped, Boyer took his place.

Up to that time it had seemed a race between Murphy and Cooper, but when Boyer took the wheel of the Duesenberg he set out with a great burst of speed to overtake the flying leader. Lap after lap he drove from 99 to 104 miles an hour, gradually getting nearer and nearer Cooper and Murphy. When Murphy stopped for supplies the second time, Boyer stepped into second place, half a lap back of Cooper. Murphy had to stop again within a few laps for another tire and that cut off his chances almost completely.

In the 178th lap Cooper was forced to the pits for his second stop. This gave Boyer his chance and he shot into a lead which he made greater and greater until the end. To completely kill his position Cooper was forced to make another stop and though his last tire change was made in ten seconds he had no chance to catch Boyer and the latter came on to win by almost a lap. Murphy had stuck pretty close to him in the last 30 laps which cut down his speed and he was a third of a lap back of Cooper.

The victory of Boyer was one of the most popular in the annals of racing. He has been driving here several years and has won a place in the hearts of all by his spectacular speed in every race he has entered. He is a young millionaire from Detroit, but most unassuming, and this added to his popularity. Then the car was a product of Indianapolis, designed by Fred Duesenberg, who has long been noted for his speed creations, and built in the Duesenberg shops here.

Cooper Unlucky.

Earl Cooper was a bit unlucky to lose. He drove a wonderful race and, but for having all his tire changing at the last of the race, might have done better. He followed the early speed of Jimmy Murphy very closely, and when he got a chance he showed a burst of speed which was almost as spectacular as that of Cooper. It was in the 40 laps that Cooper and Murphy staged a mighty duel. Time after time they raced down the long stretch with wheels aching, even, but in the forty-fourth lap Cooper got the lead and held it for the most part until Boyer seized it in the 178th lap. Cooper drove lap after lap in the early Murphy duel stage at better than 100 miles an hour.

But with all the startling speed shown by Cooper he could not afford a lead which would stand for any long and the average was never below 98 miles an hour, so closely was he pressed by Murphy and then Boyer.

The race was free of accidents of any kind.

The forest fire reports that 36,000 forest fires every year destroy timber and property valued at $16,500,000 in the United States, besides costing many human lives.

Trials today, however, did not disclose any great speed or time by the athletes who apparently were satisfied to put forth only sufficient effort to win and to display their real worth tomorrow.

Scouts from scores of universities and colleges are here looking over the material.

The finals in the high school section start at 12:30 o'clock. Central standard time, with the academic events alternating. Trophy awards will be made tomorrow night.

TECH HIGH BOYS AMONG QUALIFIERS.

Among the qualifiers named in the summaries of the first day of the Chicago interscholastic field and track games were P. Smith, Tech High, Atlanta, who qualified in the pole vault, and Passos, also of Tech High, who came through the first round of the discus throw and shot put.

Americans Win Tennis Matches

Berkeley, Cal., May 30.—Tennis players representing California won the two matches played here this morning with the Australian Davis cup members. William M. Johnston and Clarence J. In the first singles match of the day Howard O. Kinsey, sixth ranking player nationally, defeated Richard E. Schlesinger, of Australia, 6-4, 8-6.

ALLIES WILL KEEP GRIP ON GERMANY

London, May 30.—(By the Associated Press.)—The allies intend to keep a firm hand on military control on Germany by maintaining the commission of control in full operation until the disarmament demands made in the Treaty of Versailles are fully executed, according to a long note from the council of ambassadors sent to Berlin from Paris today.

The ambassadors' communication was in reply to the German note of March 31, in which the Berlin government maintained that it was time for the League of Nations to take over the supervision. The ambassadors' note reaffirms the contention that it is the legal right of the allies to decide for themselves when the time has arrived for transferring the duty of controlling German armaments to the league after the time limit clauses have been executed.

Condition Not Yet Fulfilled.
"It would be hardly possible to extend that this condition is fulfilled today," the note adds.

The allies propose to end the military control as soon as possible, says the note, which urges acceptance of the general inspection contemplated by the allied note of March 5, which would consist of a series of visits. This inspection, in the view of the allies, would be completed within 3 or 4 months if it met with no obstruction and if no grave infraction of the treaty's clauses were discovered.

Replying to the German claim that the allies themselves had recognized that apart from five special categories Germany has fulfilled her disarmament obligations, the ambassadors' note says the allied governments never expressed such opinions. It points out that in the British house of commons the British government made certain declarations relative to German disarmament, but that these declarations were not intended to imply that Germany had fulfilled her obligations; they merely indicated that certain clauses at one time appeared to them to have been effectively carried out.

Conditions Defined.
"If more than four years after the enforcement of the treaty, Germany is still obliged to undergo investigation by an international commission, responsibility for the situation rests only on herself," says the note. If there had not been systematic obstruction, which the allies many times had declared the operations of disarmament would have been completed a long time ago.

The ambassadors say they feel called upon to define for the last time the conditions of the problem which allows only one of two solutions:
First—Either the German government will accept the conditions desired by the allies and at the end of this inspection, if the results are satisfactory, the military control will be limited to five points; or (second) Germany will persist in refusing the allies' offer, upon which the allies will demand strict application of the treaty.

The ambassadors conclude their

note courteously, saying that from every point of view the present situation, which is a source of constant difficulty, cannot be further prolonged, and the allies hope the German government understands it is in the general interest to arrive at a definite solution without delay. Therefore, the note adds, a favorable answer, saying that Germany accepts the proposals of the present note as regards a general inspection and the consequent limitation of control, is expected before June 30.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE GETS SCHOOL PROBLEM of the rate, it was explained, would not produce enough money alone to render any material aid to schools.

Urges Charter Amendment.
Alderman Bachman, explaining that the emergency fund was so small, suggested that a charter amendment be asked to empower the city to borrow $500,000 to be repaid next year.

The councilman inquired of the City Attorney Mayson the ruling that no such power could legally be granted by the general assembly.

Councilman Bachman moved that council adjourn but withdrew the motion when a storm of protesting voices was raised.

Alderman Bachman suggested that a special tax be sought under authority of the general assembly in the form of a charter amendment, declaring that the city would be opposed any tax increase except for such an emergency. A tax in combination with the water rate income might meet the crisis, he said.

Proposed.
Councilman W. E. Saunders then introduced a resolution to ask authority to float a bond issue of $500,000 to be repaid in five years.

Councilman Couch proposed an amendment to make the issue $800,000, the full amount that the schools would need to begin with a clean sheet in 1925.

Before a vote was taken on the Saunders plan, Councilman James L. Wells introduced a resolution calling for appointment of the special committee to prepare in legal form one or several alternative plans. The resolution was adopted without dissent.

The resolution was referred to the special committee on motion of Alderman W. B. Hartsfield.

Following the meeting, Alderman R. A. Gordon announced that he would introduce a resolution Monday for a charter amendment to abolish the present school board this summer and to place the school department under council and general council on the same basis as the construction, police, fire, sanitary and other departments are controlled.

Alderman Gordon said the present plan of a semi-independent school board had been proved dangerous by the series of financial crises in which it has involved itself.

Finance Board Delayed.
No further action is to be taken toward preparing the June finance sheet until council has definitely settled the school question Monday, Alderman Bachman stated. Council probably will recess until Tuesday after it has taken action on the school problem Monday and will receive the June finance sheet then. The charter committee will report to council at the first session in June. The finance committee's work of the past week was upset by the breakdown of negotiations for a school loan.

Three Plans Pending.
Three plans looking toward permanent solution of the school problem are now pending before committees of the board but no action is to be attempted toward carrying any of them into effect until the immediate crisis has been met.

One school board plan is to make it an entirely separate, independent and incorporated body.

Another is to increase the city tax rate to $2 with a decrease in assessment basis to 50 per cent of market value.

Another is to consolidate city and county school systems.

None of them are intended to cope with the present emergency.

HARDWICK ASSAILS MODERN TREND

state. He said that in North Carolina the public policy seemed to be to invite foreign capital for legitimate and profitable investment in that state, while in Georgia the policy seemed to be to frighten foreign capital away.

Mr. Hardwick contended that factional politics alone could not account for the present situation in Georgia. He pointed out that there had been two separate and opposing political parties, namely the whigs and democrats, and that since the Civil war, while there had been only one real political party in Georgia, there had been opposing factions in that party.

He said that Georgia, as well as all other states, had the choice of either having a dominant political party or two factions of the same political party. He contended that in no other way could the people express themselves and control the government.

"Group Politics" the Cause.
Continuing this line of argument, Mr. Hardwick insisted that the real trouble in Georgia was what he termed "group politics." He insisted that hereafter any candidate for office in Georgia who sought either directly or indirectly votes on account of his church affiliations or wheedling contributions from another "group" which he referred to as the Ku Klux Klan. Mr. Hardwick said that he had no objection to the printed principles of this organization, but that he had every sort of objection to the admitted practice of the organization. There is no room in Georgia for two governments, one visible and the other invisible. There is no room in Georgia for the courts of justice, existing under the law and administering the law, and at the same time the courts of secret oathbound, face-covered organizations, undertaking to judge and punish the conduct of the people. He insisted that he was a citizen of the free state of Georgia, and not of the invisible empire, and he said that if Georgia was ever to be redeemed from its present condition of little men in high public places, it would have to be done by the people's returning to the fundamental principles of democracy, and adhering to visible instead of invisible government. "We have," the speaker insisted, "no room in Georgia for secret organizations that stir up religious prejudices among the people, or seek to control our politics."

RECALL OF JUDGES FAVORED BY BAR

effective in the next election and at the same time the advancing of the plan for a constitutional change in the method of selecting judges can be furthered.

Herbert H. Swift, of Columbus, one of the youngest members of the association to be thus honored, will be head of the organization next year. He has been chairman of the executive committee since 1922.

Other officers chosen are: First vice president, George S. Jones, Macon; second vice president, First, Howell Cone, Statesboro; second, D. Rich, Colquitt; third, Zach Arnold, Fort Gaines; fourth, A. H. Thompson, LaGrange; fifth, R. B. Troutman, Atlanta; sixth, George F. Jones, Macon; seventh, C. C. Bunn, Cedarvale; eighth, W. K. Meadows, Athens; ninth, C. N. Davis, Gainesville; tenth, J. B. Jones, Macon; eleventh, W. B. Gibbs, Jessup; twelfth, H. E. Coates, Hawkinsville. Secretary, Harry R. Strozier, Macon; treasurer, Logan Pickley, Atlanta; executive committee, W. F. Fogarty, Augusta; chairman, Warren B. Parke, Dawson; J. Wright, Rome; Russell New, Quitman.

The following additional new members were elected:
Edward C. Brennan, Savannah; P. Q. Ryan, Macon; J. B. Jones, Macon; W. M. Matthews, Macon; James J. McGrath, Savannah; S. F. Memory, Blackshear; Kendrick C. Smith, Atlanta; Charles L. Kemper and W. A. Althoff, Atlanta; Frank R. Williamson, Forsyth; Nephew Clark, Savannah; G. S. Johnson, Statesboro.

The president appointed a standing committee on legislation, composed of Judge A. W. Cozart, Columbus, chairman; J. K. Phillips, Louisville, and T. F. Fleming, Sparta.

To Raise Standard.
The special order for tomorrow is the consideration and passing upon the report on legal education and requirements for admittance to the practice of law. It is understood that the committee report will recommend some distinctly strengthening changes in the requirements for eligibility to admittance to the bar. Following a lengthy harangue on the subject by Judge A. W. Cozart, Columbus, chairman; J. K. Phillips, Louisville, and T. F. Fleming, Sparta.

Bar Oves Duty.
The self-seeker, the self-advertiser, the man who goes into law for his big good fellowship and his personal popularity in the soliciting of votes and then offering himself in the rough and tumble of debate, or as a common lobbyist at public sessions, is seldom, if ever, qualified by character, temperament or learning for judicial office.

Pointing out the need for judges with a thorough learning in the law, Mr. Latimer stated that "a judge who possesses a mere smattering of the law is most dangerous in any community."

The bar owes a duty to the public which it should discharge and which it is not discharging under our present system. We as lawyers know that the public is entitled to the best of our service and it is our duty to ourselves and to our profession to speak unflinchingly upon the qualifications and fitness of every judicial candidate.

To Furnish Facts.
"It is our duty to furnish the voting public with such information and facts as will enable them to intelligently select the judges, and unless we do this we are failing in our duty and meet it as we should, the standard of our judiciary is going to be lowered from year to year, and the barriers of protection through the courts will be weakened and lowered until society itself may become imperiled. If we will join unitedly in the effort to go higher in the selection of judges, we will strengthen our institutions, our courts and the usefulness of our profession."

Examine Candidates.
The proposed amendment to the constitution of the association includes the following provisions:
The president shall appoint a committee of judges and lawyers, who shall consist of 10 members who shall hold office for four years, and whose duty it shall be to examine and report upon the fitness of candidates for judicial office; and to advise members of the bar whether they should be continued in office; and to take such action as it may see fit to secure the nomination and election of candidates possessing the highest qualifications for judicial office."

Committee on Judicial Candidates.
The committee on judicial candidates shall meet at the call of the chairman prior to the date of the primary for nominations and prior to the election of judges, and shall have the right to make a recommendation to the voters in a particular election as to the fitness of judicial candidates. Such organization may also consist of a committee of lawyers and judges, or of proper qualifications as candidates for such office."

POPULAR ELECTION SCORED BY SNOW.
The election of judges by the people for four years to remove the blindfold from the eyes of justice and to warp the scales of justice and to the pressure of political expediency, Russell Snow, of Quitman, told delegates to the annual convention.

Mr. Snow stated that he was advocating an amendment to the constitution of the association, introduced by W. Carroll Latimer, of Atlanta, which would make the bar associations of this state a part of the deliberations. The committee or the joint organization shall determine the advisability of making recommendations to the voters in a particular election as to the fitness of judicial candidates. Such organization may also consist of a committee of lawyers and judges, or of proper qualifications as candidates for such office."

Preserve Rights, Plea.
The direct inhibition of power to the United States was not felt by many of the framers of the constitution to be necessary, he was adopted in order to quiet the apprehensions of those who feared that the federal government, in our state, one of our justices, Judge Hiram Warner, declared in 1847 the fifth amendment was merely declaratory, and that it was for two governments, one visible and the other invisible. There is no room in Georgia for the courts of justice, existing under the law and administering the law, and at the same time the courts of secret oathbound, face-covered organizations, undertaking to judge and punish the conduct of the people. Recall of Judges Favored by Bar

Mr. Latimer is chairman of a special committee of the association which has appointed to discuss the question of the recall of judges. He is also an association assist in the selection of candidates for judicial office. His proposed amendment came in the nature of a resolution to be adopted by the association.

Suggest Committee.
Briefly, the proposed plan would involve the appointment of a committee of ten members of the association, who shall examine into and report on the fitness of all candidates for judicial office and shall also carefully observe the administration of each judge of the courts of record in the state. When a judge was to be chosen, either by popular election or by appointment, this committee would take whatever action seemed wise to secure the highest quality of the highest qualifications for judicial office.

The amendment also provides for the taking of a ballot of all members of the bar in the state, including those who are members of the bar association and non-members, which ballot would be taken at the annual meeting of the state bar given to the candidate who receives the highest number of votes. The vote cast by any lawyer is to be kept secret and after all votes are counted, he has passed they are to be destroyed.

Elect Best Man.
By this means, Mr. Latimer believes that the practice now prevalent of electing judges by the popular vote, based on the basis of getting places to sign endorsements of their candidacy, would be done away with and the weight of the endorsement of the entire membership of the bar would be thrown to the candidate best qualified for the office.

The primary system as now existing in Georgia has put the election of judges in the hands of the voters. Mr. Latimer said, "Under this system candidates for judicial office are self-selected, and frequently we do not have an opportunity to vote for the best qualified man available. We are forced to vote for the man who is the best qualified for the office. They are unwilling to put themselves on the auction block for sale to the voters."

Not offered as a panacea for all the ills of the system, but as one means for the improvement of a political condition which cannot commend itself to those who have studied its practical defects."
HINES EULOGIZES
McKINLEY, JR.
Associate Justice James K. Hines, of the Georgia supreme court, read a biographical sketch of Henschel Vespasian Johnson, anti-bellum jurist, congressman and United States senator from Georgia.

Eulogizing Johnson as an "able and learned lawyer," Justice Hines asserted that he was "grounded in the principles upon which the law rests. He was a profound student of government. He believed in the capacity of the people for self-government, if they were enlightened by education and guided by religion."

Justice Hines' sketch, which embraced the life of Johnson from the time of his birth in 1812 until the time of his death in 1889, contained numerous excerpts from an unpublished autobiography written by the former Georgia statesman, and reviewed Johnson's early schooling in the piney woods of Burke county; of his matriculation and graduation from the University of Georgia; his subsequent admission to the bar, and dealt at length with his various political accomplishments during the dark period of before-the-war days.

In speaking of Johnson's death, Justice Hines said: "The storms of life were over and he met the terrors of the future, if such terrors there be, without fear and without trembling."

SELF-SELECTION GREATEST EVIL SLADE.
Lester C. Slade, of Columbus, tonight in an address declared "the self-selection of candidates is the evil in the system which is most pernicious and peculiarly an evil in Georgia and other southern states."

The fact that "Georgia is suffering from the disease of having but one method of selecting judges, and that method is self-selection," he declared, "we all know. As far as the government of the United States is concerned we are in it, but not of it. As for the fundamental principles and traditions of the nation, we believe in them, we love them, we worship them—from afar."

"We still send our senators and representatives to Washington, to the halls of the republic, notwithstanding it may be advocating those principles that are dearest to our heart. Such is the political disease, and such is the political evil, we are suffering from in Georgia."

GAMBLE URGES "BAR PRIMARY."
Holding of a "bar primary" in which every practitioner would be permitted to vote for the candidate for judicial office, was the best qualified, was advocated tonight as "the most practical method of assisting in the selection of candidates for judicial office," by John B. Gamble.

The subject of Mr. Gamble's paper was "In What Way Can the Bar Assist in the Selection of Candidates for Judicial Office?"

He stated that he favored the appointment of a committee by the association, or by the entire bar of the state, to hold such advisory and legislative, was advocated tonight as "the most practical method of assisting in the selection of candidates for judicial office," by John B. Gamble.

instead of temporary, as is the case with the McNary-Haugen bill.

They have two aims for railroad legislation, passage of the bills abolishing the railroad labor board and repealing section 15-A of the interstate commerce act.

Insurgents will make an effort to get both of these measures voted out, Brookhart declared at least two or three weeks, and may be used.

Postponement of action on the McNary-Haugen bill has complicated the situation. If a vote is taken on the McNary-Haugen bill, there will remain but four days to push another measure through both house and senate. A compromise measure is under preparation, but it is not yet known whether it will be passed.

Fillibuster Is Possible.
Because of the determination of senate and house leaders to adjourn on schedule, it is doubtful if a filibuster will be attempted.

They will resort to other tactics. Brookhart said Friday he declared that a filibuster could be attempted for at least two or three weeks, and may be used.

Franks' body and that the swamp was one of his favorite places to go to study the habits of birds.

Neighbors of Franks family. Leopold and Loeb both reside in the neighborhood of the Franks home. Both knew the Franks family, according to the police.

And to add to the established facts relating to the detention of Loeb and Leopold there is a remarkable story which has been told by a version taken by the group of which Leopold and Loeb were members.

Leopold, who speaks fifteen languages, has been a student of sexual perversion since he was 13 years old. Only a few months ago he planned to translate an old Italian book, which dealt with unusual forms of sexual perversion, but he was dissuaded from this by professors at Chicago university.

Loeb, his closest friend, also was interested in studies of man's strange mental and physical quirks and was two known, even outside of the peculiar set with which they associated, as brilliant youths whose intellectual interests had taken strange turns.

Score All Conventions.
The set in which Leopold and Loeb moved for two or more years called itself "Emancipated." The young men who belong have many friends among men boys. They are independent of conventions, which they profess to scorn. They all "live their own lives."

They have scorned the law, and have been expelled from school and have flaunted their wealth, their egos, their strange opinions of life and conduct in the faces of those with whom they have been thrown into daily contact.

Leopold and Loeb, like the other boys in their set, were brilliant students. They and their friends had grades above the average. But they were every night late for their college studies. They were frequenters of strange gatherings in the half world of a fake Bohemia, where gilded youths, near homes, radical young women, and eccentric persons of all types, outside the insane asylums, met to discuss life and sex, love and philosophy.

Play Based on League Fight Ends in Financial Failure
CO-AUTHOR BRINGS "FOOTPRINTS" INTO COURT

Financial failure of "Footprints," the play presented at the Woman's club last week, is disclosed in a bill filed in Fulton superior court Friday by Cora Paxton Stewart to prevent Wilson J. Bryce "from leaving the state with the balance of the money."

Miss Stewart, who alleges she and Bryce wrote as well as produced the play together, asked the court for a writ of ne exeat to prevent Bryce from going beyond the boundaries of Georgia. She alleged he was preparing to do so with what money there was on hand after a loss of $770.22 had been incurred in producing the play. Judge E. D. Thomas did not issue the writ, but he granted an injunction, as prayed, restraining Bryce from copyrighting the play in his own name, and an order for him to surrender all copies thereof in his hands to Sheriff J. J. Lowry, setting June 7 as the date for a hearing.

Miss Stewart alleges that she and Bryce, a non-resident of Georgia, embarked upon the enterprise of writing and producing a play "based upon the league of nations idea of the late Woodrow Wilson." She says Bryce not only had no money to put into the show, but lacked personal expenses "at least to the extent of $35 which petitioner advanced to him, along with the sum of $80 which he was to use in defraying expenses of the production." Bryce did not so use the $80, she avers, and therefore owes her $115, for which she prays judgment.

The deficit of $770.22 arose, by reason of the fact, says the petition, that "whereas an expense outlay of $853.47 was undergone, admissions for four performances given May 21, 22 and 23 (there being a nation on the May 23 total only $83.25).

Miss Stewart prayed the court to order the play sold to pay the indebtedness of the Stewart-Bryce partnership. She is represented by Attorney Warthen Evans.

And the tired, but smiling, physician adds:
"The mother is doing splendidly."

If you have ever heard these blessed words, after hours—seemingly centuries—of waiting without the door of a room, within which one dearer than life itself has descended through agonies, which make Dante's circles of hell seem nothing, into the very jaws of death, to give life to another, you need not talk to teach you the value of that boy or girl of yours.

But it is often difficult for us to value rightly the sons and daughters of others.

Easy to forget that every one of them is the living evidence of a heroism and suffering, which equal, if they do not surpass even the heroism and suffering of Flaubert's heroes, Belshazzar and Chateaubriand.

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Back Weak and Painful. Mrs. Miller Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rotan, Tex.—"I am writing to let you know how I have been benefited by taking your medicine. After my second baby was born my back was weak and hurt me continually, so I thought I'd try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had read so much about where it had helped so many women. I had been bothered with my back for over a year, and it would hurt me until I could not do my work, which is keeping house for three and cooking and washing dishes. I tell all my friends if they have any kind of female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. You may use this testimonial if it will help any one."—Mrs. C. B. MILLER, R.F.D. No. 1, Box 76, Rotan, Texas.

In a recent county-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 121,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Prevents Bird Lice. A little sulphur sprinkled in the sand in the bottom of the bird cage will keep away insects.

At a Cooler House. All heavy draperies and hangings should be removed during the summer months. Cretonnes containing greens and tans will prove cooling, as they suggest the out-of-doors.

No Trouble. The few leftover strawberries may be put on the stove in a saucepan, a little sugar stirred in, and by the time the dishes are washed, enough jam for tomorrow's lunch is on hand.

Rules for the Stout Person. Eat but one serving. Eat slowly and masticate thoroughly.

Nothing between meals, especially avoiding the midnight feast. Eat but one starch vegetable at a meal, avoiding that one if possible.

Butter, cream, pastries, candy, salad oils, cakes and all things containing large amounts of sugar sparingly.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

SUGGESTIONS. If one intends to make a serious and sensible study of the subject of beauty, one has to consider some of the less pleasant sides of the question; for instance, perspiration, bad breath, pimples, dyspepsia, and a lot that is not so pleasant.

About perspiration then. This is a problem that grows more annoying as the weather becomes warmer. Some perspire freely, some very odorously, unfortunately for them. Some people seem to have naturally strong skins. I knew one awfully nice girl who used to come from a half hour's swim in warm sea water, her skin still strongly colored with perspiration. That was the pores, active from her exercise, still throwing off matter that was deep in the skin.

In every case of bad or odoriferous perspiration, take a daily warm bath using plenty of soap, preferably castile. It won't relieve the condition for long, but it will in the end. Use this take an antiseptic bath. Buy boracic acid in powder form by the pound and add two generous tablespoons of it to your bath water. It will remove the odor, and is antiseptic. Or use any good creosote antiseptic, and ask your doctor the proper proportion to a bath of warm water. One of the most famous skin diseases of the war cured every case he undertook, with the British army at a hospital in Etaples, by giving the men two very hot antiseptic baths every day, the antiseptic being a thick black stuff, mostly creosote.

Cases of boils that had existed for months and years, yielded at once to this.

But for perspiration, you needn't be that nervous. The daily bath, and lots of cooling bath powder, half boracic acid powder, half talcum, will do it.

M. A. G.—Try a simple douche such as weak salt water or warm water softened with a little bit of boracic acid, and if the eyelids continue to be red consult the doctor.

A. B. C.—Epsom salts is soothing when used in a foot bath when there is a tendency to rheumatism. A girl of 20 years of age, height five feet six inches, should weigh between 120 and 125 pounds. The girl who is 16 and one inch less in height should weigh from three to five pounds less than this.

M. L. L.—When making a curling fluid from gum tragacanth, use sufficient water to have the fluid liquid enough for the consistency of a thin mullige.

Bud—I should think that a girl of 16 who had attained the height of five feet seven inches would not grow much taller, but would now begin to fill out all over. I will be glad to send the formula for the ladies if you forward a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Frances B. C. in care of the "Beauty Chat" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a person or a quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

MORE OFFICE SPACE ASKED BY COMMISSION

In its fourth annual report, just published, the Georgia securities commission asks the governor for some arrangement whereby it may secure additional office space. The present quarters are declared totally inadequate for conduct of its business.

The office of the commission at present is in a corner of the main office of the secretary of state and with four regular employees at work there, it is so restricted as to make it practically impossible to properly conduct the work or store the steadily accumulating files of correspondence. It is stated.

After reviewing the activity of the department during the year, the report states the securities law has worked so smoothly that there is no present need of changing it.

During 1923, there were 85 issuers' licenses granted for the sale of stocks, bonds and other securities aggregating $11,886,625.82, of which 70 permits were for Class D securities and 13 for Class C securities. Class C securities are based on established earnings or assets, while Class D securities are speculative.

The report shows gross receipts of $15,618.17 by the commission and expenditures of $9,061.45, leaving a balance in the bank of $6,556.72, January 1.

"We have done everything in our power to educate the people to discriminate between Class C and Class D securities," says the report, "and to call on stockholders to produce their authority from the commission, as the law requires. Purchasers who will not do this can only have themselves to blame for their losses."

The commission is composed of Secretary of State S. Gurt McLeod, Attorney General George M. Napier and Commissioner of Commerce and Labor Hal M. Stanley. F. B. Conner is chief examiner; W. P. Adams, assistant examiner; Mrs. H. H. Rainey, secretary, and Miss Fannie Mae Hargis, stenographer.

Officer Wounded By Wife Denies Charge of Theft

"She is insane with anger and some day will regret charging me with theft," Ernest C. Chapman, police officer who was wounded three times by his wife early Thursday morning, asserted Friday in reply to charges by his wife that he had brought stolen goods to the home, 18 Lynch avenue. Officer Chapman is confined to Grady hospital under guard, following the charge by his wife, who is held a prisoner at the police station, that he had taken several articles from the Toggery Store, at 50 Decatur street, following a burglary at that place.

Officer Chapman is nearly ten years younger than his wife, he stated Friday. She was the widow of one of the wounded officer's best friends, he stated. She has four children by her first husband.

"I sympathize deeply with her and would be glad if the police would release her. I won't prosecute her," Officer Chapman said, adding that her children needed her at home.

The officer also stated that he couldn't understand why she should make false charges against him, unless it was in hopes of being able to create sympathy for herself and obtain release on bond. This would not be necessary, however, he said, as he would not prosecute in the state court.

Both Officer Chapman and his wife admit that for the past three years their married life has been very unhappy.

NEED OF PURE SEED LAW URGED BY BROWN

Following receipt of a letter from A. J. Long, of the Macon Grocery company, of Macon, urging that some means be devised to protect Georgia farmers from impure seed, J. J. Brown, state commissioner of agriculture, stated Friday that he was heartily in favor of such a step.

"A law guaranteeing Georgia farmers that, when they purchase their seed they will get pure seed which will germinate properly, and that if it does not they may obtain redress from the seller, is one of the most vital needs in agriculture today," said Mr. Brown.

He pointed out when the seed failed it involved only the loss of the seed but also loss of the land for that year, with fertilizer and work done on it.

Mr. Brown cited what he declared was a typical case. A farmer who purchased $150 worth of seed oats, planted a 50-acre field, and as he expressed it did everything needed to bring a good crop, except harvest it.

The seed, however, did not germinate. In this case, the seed house from which the purchase was made voluntarily reimbursed the farmer for the price of the seed but, as Mr. Brown pointed out, the farmer was really out a 50-acre crop of oats, minus the cost of harvesting, for which no one could reimburse him.

There should be a law providing for thoroughly equipped laboratory to test all seed offered for sale, and a law providing penalties for seed which does not come up to a specified standard, said Mr. Brown. It should also provide that the seed sold be of the variety it is labeled and there should be strict penalties for violation of this clause, he added.

In his letter, Mr. Long points out that pure seed is the most important item purchased by planters, for no matter how fertile his land or how good his fertilizer, if he plants inferior seed his crop is a failure.

Mr. Brown pointed out that he has urged passage of a law as described above on three or four different occasions, when it has been introduced in the legislature, but to date such for a thoroughly equipped laboratory to test all seed offered for sale, and a law providing penalties for seed which does not come up to a specified standard, said Mr. Brown. It should also provide that the seed sold be of the variety it is labeled and there should be strict penalties for violation of this clause, he added.

In his letter, Mr. Long points out that pure seed is the most important item purchased by planters, for no matter how fertile his land or how good his fertilizer, if he plants inferior seed his crop is a failure.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE KILLING OF WALKER

The Fulton grand jury Tuesday is expected to probe a murder charge against Wade Walker, 79 Ponders avenue, who shot his brother, Nick Walker, Wednesday afternoon in the front yard of their home, Solicitor General John A. Boykin stated Friday.

According to Wade Walker's contention his brother was drunk, had threatened members of the family, and had made a move as if to draw a pistol when the shooting occurred. It was said that the solicitor general's office that evidence had been found to controvert this contention.

Damage suits totaling $36,235 were filed in Fulton superior court Friday against J. D. Davis, Jr., doing business as the Davis Construction company, for injuries alleged to have been suffered August 20, 1922, when Mrs. H. A. Wimbish, Shaffer B. Wimbish and Miss Margie Wimbish were thrown from an automobile which is alleged to have struck an obstruction over the A. B. & A. railroad tracks at Mallory station. The suits allege the plaintiffs were riding in an automobile driven by Miss Nell Smiley about dark and failed to see an obstruction placed in the road at a bridge which spans the tracks, work upon which was being done by the construction company. They allege the company was negligent in so placing this obstruction before the uncompleted job.

Mrs. Wimbish sued for $10,050, Shaffer Wimbish sued for $10,030, H. A. Wimbish, husband and father of the two respectively, sue for $11,000 for loss of their services, and Mrs. J. E. BY EDGAR FRANKLIN

"The trunk which was brought here? Where is it?"

"Oh, that trunk, sir. It was taken away again, Mr. Dalton. The person that brought it said it was for Felice, the maid we dismissed this morning, sir."

"For Felice?" Dalton echoed.

"Quite so, sir."

"Why was it sent to Felice?"

"I couldn't say, sir," said Bates, stepping to the gate and opening it. "There it goes, sir, on the cab."

Dalton leaned heavily against Hobart Hitchin.

"Goes—where?" said he.

"Well, I'm not sure as it was his voice, sir, but I think standing out here, I heard him tell the man to go back where they came from."

CHAPTER 7.

Black fire shot from Dalton's deep-set eyes, as they twitched to Hitchin; his lips became a ghastly white line; his mighty chest rose and fell; and now he had taken Hobart Hitchin's arm again and led him back to a dusky corridor.

"Come!" said Theodore Dalton, once more, and they returned to the study in a series of stumbles and little jumps.

Once in the dark, handsome room Theodore Dalton walked straight to the cabinet in the corner and, with a key, opened the topmost drawer. He extracted therefrom a heavy automatic pistol and slipped it in his pocket.

"Bates!" Dalton spoke into the little interior telephone. "My car!"

"If you're going somewhere—" escaped Hobart Hitchin.

"I am going to see Anthony Fry. You are going with me. You are going to accuse him, in my presence, of the crime," said Theodore Dalton, with the same ominous calm. "And when you have accused him, I shall do the rest!"

Anthony Fry leaned back in his pet chair and gazed at the ceiling, long, steadily, happily.

"Anthony?" Johnson Boller said faintly.

"What is it?"

"Listen, Anthony! You and I have to stand together, old man. The girl's out of the way, so that clear your skirts for a while, but what about Hitchin? What if he calls in the police this afternoon?"

Anthony laughed, with Mary out of the way he was another man.

"We'll let that take care of itself."

Having delivered that sentiment, Anthony arose, listening, and strode to the door, which he opened. He stepped back suddenly, for with one searing glance at him a woman had passed.

She was in the living-room even now, and smiling horribly at Johnson Boller. She was, in a word, Johnson Boller's wife, and her black eyes snapped more ominously than before.

"Don't touch me!" she was saying, as Johnson Boller approached with hands outstretched. "I've come back, but only to tell you!"

"To tell you that you've changed your mind, little pigeon?" Johnson Boller cried brokenly. "You're going to let Pudgy waddy—"

"Faugh!" said the lady, and from her radiated the Spanish grandmother and all the strain implied—blood lust, vengeance! "No, I've come to tell you that I mean to make that woman's name a scandal and a byword from one end of town to the other! Not some woman's name, but the woman's name!"

"But—"

"How can I do it?" laughed the different Mrs. Boller. "I've found out who she is!"

Beatrice Boller, standing there with Mary's hat still clutched tight and partly broken, was not smiling the smile of a woman who fancied herself on the right track. She smiled of one who knew exactly where she stood.

She laughed again as she watched the effect of the ominous statement. She sat down then, and having opened her hand-bag and drawn therefrom a little slip of paper, she resumed her inspection of the silent pair.

"You don't understand at all, do you? Well you shall! Your lady friend made one mistake, gentlemen. Any young woman off on that sort of adventure should be cautious enough to destroy marks of identification. This hat, as it happens, came from Mme. Altier. I went and interviewed her and—"

Again, as before, at the door some one was hammering in a way coldly familiar. Anthony, on his feet, hurried to answer the summons—and the door was hardly open when young Robert Vining hurried in and gripped him by both arms.

"It's no use, Anthony!" he gasped. "There's not a trace of her yet!"

"No?"

"She's gone! She's gone!" cried Robert, breaking into his familiar refrain.

"Hush!" said Anthony. "There's a lady present, Bob."

Vining almost came to earth for a moment.

"What?"

"To be sure, Mrs. Boller—Mrs. Robert Vining."

He spoke directly at her, so that Robert, out of his emotional fog, gained an idea of her location, and turned dizzily toward her.

Then Robert raised his stricken eyes.

And as he raised them, a great shock ran through Robert, and after it he stiffened. His eyes popped, as if he could not quite believe what he saw, and his body averted forward.

Robert, with a hoarse, incoherent scream, ran straight at Beatrice Boller and snatched away the hat from under her arm.

"That's Mary's! That's Mary's!" he cried hysterically. "That's Mary's hat, because I was with her the day she bought it, and I'd know it among ten thousand hats. Yes, and it's torn and broken—it's all smashed on this side!"

Greenish white, jaw sagging, Robert looked from one to the other of them.

"You—you're afraid to tell me!" said he. "She—There was an accident! I can see that by the hat. There was an accident and she was hurt and—where is she now? Where is she now? Good God! Is she—dead?"

"She isn't dead," Anthony said quietly, because he had been looking at Beatrice and feeling his flesh crawl as he looked.

"Then where is Mary? Why don't you tell me about it?" Robert stormed on. And whirling upon Beatrice, the unfortunate young man threw out his hands and cried: "You tell me! What has happened to her? Where did you get the hat?"

"The young lady is a friend of yours, too?" she asked very sweetly.

"Friend!" Robert cried. "She's the girl I'm going to marry!"

Beatrice's laugh was blood-curdling. "Or perhaps you're not!" Mrs. Boller mused. "You think her a very worthy young woman?"

Robert looked blankly at her.

"But she is not," Beatrice said softly. "And you look like a decent sort, and however much it may hurt for a little, you shall have the truth. You asked me where I found this hat. Well, it was in the bedroom at the end of that corridor—Mr. Boller's room."

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

"IT'S THE END."

It was an intensely, suffocatingly hot night. An electric storm was brewing in the far west. Thunder rumbled ominously along the rim of the world, and pallid lightning illuminated the premature darkness, revealing the uneasy waters of the sound.

Dinner in the Boice-Nevis household had been a strained affair. Mrs. Boice-Nevis was furious. Her husband had not returned for dinner, nor telephoned, and at 9 o'clock they were both due for a brilliant party in honor of a visiting celebrity. To miss it would break her pretty, shallow heart. To go, unescorted, in the company of Julie or Lella and their respective husbands, would be an humiliation too great to bear.

Over the dessert, her patience snapped, and she peremptorily ordered him to prepare to accompany her. Dan had a previous engagement, which he relinquished sulkily.

It wasn't a pleasant meal and Marjorie escaped at her first opportunity. She wandered into the library, strangely oppressed by the approaching storm. As a rule, she loved storms. She liked to watch the lightning cleaving the dark vault of the sky, liked to feel the wind tearing ruthless fingers through her hair, liked to think of the thunderbolts as coming from mythical Olympus, where a giant god vented his petulance.

But tonight some queer psychic prescience held her in its grip. She felt a significance in the storm, apart from its mere physical demonstration. She was standing by the French window looking out over the waters of the sound, now whipped to whitecaps by the rising wind, when a brilliant shaft of lightning and a deafening thunder crash drove her back into the shelter of the room.

When she turned around her father was standing by the table. She had not heard him enter and one look at his livid face brought an involuntary cry.

"Dad, you're ill! What is it?" She started toward him, but he waved her away without looking at her. His eyes were strangely fixed on space. His face and lips were bloodless and when he smiled, with apparent effort, it was like the ghastly grin of a death's head.

"Will you—call mother, please? Ask her to come to the library."

Marjorie sped away, fear tearing at her heart.

Mrs. Boice-Nevis was in the hands of Mathilda, being made beautiful for the evening festivity.

She stared calmly at her daughter's excited young face, reflected in her dressing-table glass, without turning her head lest she spoil the coiffure that Mathilda was deftly constructing.

"What an absurd summons!" she remarked lightly. "Doesn't your father remember that we're due for the Clavington's dance? It would be an affront to miss it. Tell him to dress at once. We can talk in the car going over, if there's anything to discuss."

"But mother, he's very ill. He looks terrible—"

"Nonsense! If he were ill he'd be getting to bed, not remaining in the library. I know what it is—"

wants to crawl out of the Clavington party. But he shan't do it this time! I won't go alone," her pretty lips set determinedly. "You can tell him so."

Marjorie went back to the library slowly.

Her father was seated at the table, slumped a bit in his chair. A decanter and glass were beside him. He was pouring himself a drink with an unsteady hand and most of the liquor was slopping untidily over the priceless mahogany.

She repeated her mother's message. For a moment he seemed not to understand. Then he sprang to his feet and his face was terrible.

"Go back to her!" he commanded thickly. "Go back to her and say that she shall come now—or she need never come again!"

Marjorie was frightened. She had never seen her father in this mood. He was a stranger, a terrifying stranger.

She sped to obey his command. Her mother's toilet was complete by this time. She stood before the pier glass, turning this way and that to view herself critically. Marjorie thought she had never seen her younger or lovelier. Her figure was as slim and pliant as a debutante in her gown of orange brocade. The arms and shoulders, revealed by her general décolletage, were white and unblemished by time. Her pretty, aristocratic little head was carried high with the assurance of beauty and charm.

She shrugged petulantly and made a little move of disgust when Marjorie delivered her message.

"How tiresome! But I suppose I must humor him if we don't want to be unforgivably late at the Clavingtons'. Come with me, Marjorie, you always have a soothing effect upon your father in his rages."

She slipped her arm playfully through her daughter's and together they entered the library. Boice-Nevis was standing where the light shone mercilessly on his ravaged face. He looked at his wife and daughter for a moment silently, while his eyes took in every detail of the former's handsome costume.

"Charlotte," he said slowly, "I'm ruined, cleaned out! I went under today. It's the end!"

JUNKYARD DOOM AWAITS ST. LOUIS

Steamship That Carried America's Defiance to Kaiser Is Towed Oversea to Death.

New York, May 30.—Without so much as a pogon salute from any of the forts which guard New York harbor, without a farewell, respectful dip of the colors which she carried in two wars, the old steamship St. Louis passed out of her old port bound for Genoa and oblivion.

She was in tow of the Dutch sailing tug Zuarte Zee, the largest vessel of its kind ever seen in these waters, which brought over an 18-inch hawser with which to haul St. Louis to a junkyard in Italy. On her decks to pay out the line or take up on the slack if the weather becomes rowdy on the 4,500-mile journey of the St. Louis was a mere skeleton crew. They had a mere ship to choose from—the captain's quarters where naval officers of great renown had bunked during the Spanish-American and world wars, or the best of her staterooms which had been occupied at times by the aristocracy of the world.

Not What She Once Was.

Her sides were soiled and her decks and quarters untidy. The fittings of her dining saloon, which was the most luxurious apartment afloat when the St. Louis took her place on the Atlantic as the sea-going palace almost 40 years ago, were faded and chipped and dirty. After her closing experiences as an American transport, and her last few seasons as a barge for the conveyance of immigrants to Ellis Island from the obscure ports of Europe, St. Louis was not the proud ship that she used to be.

And yet, on her decks, fore and aft, there were two sets of scars marking the places where guns had been mounted by the navy in 1898 and 1917. Those fixed guns whooped it up in the general din of the fight at Santiago, and the second pair fired on a dead horse which was mistaken for a submarine when the St. Louis made her historic trip to Liverpool in the spring of 1917 as the first American armed liner. Those guns on her deck on that occasion were the answer that President Wilson made to the Kaiser's announcement that the ships of all nations, including America's, whether they were carrying passengers or war supplies, would be liable to destruction.

Flagged Her Colors.

The St. Louis and her sister ship, the St. Paul, were as regular as commuters' trains on the New York-Liverpool run during the war. They paid for themselves many times over during the brief period, 1914-1917, when they carried the American colors painted large on their sides and illuminated at night. They were immune to attack and although they were not strictly modern any more, thousands of voyagers paid large prices for tickets because British and French boats were being picked off now and again. After the United States entered the war the St. Louis became a transport, but the old St. Paul turned over at her dock in New York and was not repaired in time to join the fight.

The St. Louis was sold for $85,000 for the junk that she would yield when she is attacked and broken up by the workmen in Genoa. The tow to Genoa will add $50,000 to her cost.

WORK TO START TODAY ON LUPTON BUILDINGS

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lupton, of Chattanooga, donors of $300,000 to Oglethorpe university, arrived in Atlanta Friday and are at the Biltmore hotel. This afternoon they will attend exercises which will mark beginning of work on two new buildings which are to complete Lupton hall.

The two structures, together with the one already completed, will constitute one of the handsomest school buildings in the south. The first will bear on its corner-stone the inscription, "Lupton Built It in Memory of His Mother"; upon the corner-stone of the second, "Lupton Built It for Love of His Wife," and upon the third, "Lupton Built It as an Inspiration to His Boy."

A basketball court, swimming pool and gymnasium will be built in the basement of the buildings, which will be erected with the $300,000 presented to the university by Mr. Lupton.

Through courtesy of Mrs. William Oldknow, prominent member of the woman's board of education of the university, Pathe Moving Picture company will take pictures of the exercises and a one-act play to be presented by Oglethorpe players.

Commencement exercises at Oglethorpe began Wednesday afternoon with a reception to the graduating class at the Atlanta Woman's club. Other activities include an entertainment of the student body Thursday night at Capital club; fifth annual banquet at Biltmore hotel Friday night; a meeting of the woman's board of the school this afternoon, and a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lupton at the Capital City club tonight.

YOST BELABORS LOLLING YOUTHS

Washington, May 30.—Safely upholstered chairs, luxuriously cushioned automobiles and the triumph of engineering mechanics over manual labor threaten to sap the vitality of the American nation.

Such things temper what was once a hard world, and in combination with an increasing sophistication of the younger generation, point the way to national degeneracy unless the United States turns to outdoor recreation, in the opinion of Fielding H. (Hurry-Up) Yost, nationally known builder of University of Michigan football teams.

"America is under-exercised," the famous coach declared.

"No under-exercised nation can endure. This country must turn to sane, natural outdoor recreation if it is to maintain the characteristics upon which its greatness is founded."

"In my twenty-three years' experience as a coach and athletic director," Yost said, "I have noted a subtle but increasingly apparent change in the high school graduates who come to the university."

"They have seen too much. High school boys and girls reach college practically muddled in the way of their life. The ideas of the boys, especially, incline too much to lounging in a soft chair."

Too Much Lolling.

"Modern life has divorced them from the old times, body and mind-building chores which shaped and balanced the moral and physical growth of their grandfathers and grandmothers."

"Modern invention," Yost said, "has placed at the disposal of every one a time which formerly was employed in earning a living or contributing towards it and steadily has lessened the necessity for physical exertion."

"Many young persons now spend their spare time in neuritic, jazz pursuits. Too many persons fool themselves with temporary pleasures that defeat permanent happiness."

Points Lesson of History.

"Nations," he declared, "have succeeded in democratic government in almost exact proportion to their participation in competitive games and athletics. Look at the record of ancient Greece and the present supremacy of Great Britain and the United States."

"If the going generation cannot be induced to exercise properly then the coming generation will suffer from its laziness through heredity and environment."

"Unless everyone recognizes his obligation to exercise in the name of national progress," the veteran coach declared, "nothing will prevent the degeneration of the nation."

Another Beauty Mixes Love, Lead In Taxi Romance

Chicago, May 30.—Lauretta Thompson Alberts, 24, the latest youthful beauty to mix gun-powder and lead with romance, lies in a hospital here and declares she wants to die.

Lauretta and Victor Hasterlik, vice president of the Independence State bank, were taxi riding when the driver, hearing of her, stopped the car. The door opened and Lauretta, a bullet in her shoulder, tumbled out. Hasterlik merely stepped out and remarked: "What did you do? Now what do you do?"

A note in Lauretta's purse told the world that "in case I commit suicide please talk to Mr. Hasterlik." When police talked with Hasterlik, he explained: "Why I've known the girl and her parents for years. My affection was fatherly. Any talk of a romance was ridiculous."

When she is being physicians to allow her to die, Lauretta declares that Hasterlik has loved her for four years, but that he wouldn't be married because he was a wife. Incidentally, Lauretta has a husband who is in New York.

PHINIZY SERVICE TO BE HELD TODAY

Augusta, Ga., May 30.—The funeral of Jacob Phinzy, 67, Augusta banker, capitalist and leading business man, will be held today at 10 o'clock at his country residence, Circular Court, near this city, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at St. John Methodist church, Bishop John B. Dickey, a lifelong friend of Mr. Phinzy, will officiate. Interment will be at Summerville cemetery.

About two years ago Mr. Phinzy fell and broke his hip and since that time his health has been on the decline, although he was able to attend to business from time to time, and until a short time ago transacted business as usual in his office.

Mr. Phinzy sat up in a chair on his front porch Thursday evening. All during his illness and prior to his death his mental vigor kept up. He never, at any time lost interest in affairs of the day and of the happenings in the city and country. His energy that he displayed in the many enterprises he was interested in remained with him until the last.

He was born at Augusta in 1857. He was a son of John Phinzy, who was born in Oglethorpe county in 1819, and Miss Harriet Bowdrie, of Augusta. After graduating from the University of Georgia he returned to Augusta and entered the cotton firm of Phinzy & Co., composed of James Tobin and Stewart Phinzy, the latter being his brother. He had lived in Augusta 40 years.

He was president of the four Grandville, S. C., cotton mills, the Augusta factory and the Sibley Manufacturing company.

General Chamberment and betterment of the community was the chief interest taken by Mr. Phinzy at all times. He served the city of Augusta in the capacity of mayor. His views were always conservative and logical on the expenditure of money by the city and county governments. He was quick to resist waste of the public funds.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sallie Dunbar Phinzy; four sons, Brett Phinzy, four sons, Phinzy, Marion Phinzy, all of Athens, and Charles H. Phinzy, of Augusta, and a sister, Mrs. Andrew Calhoun, of Atlanta.

TWO TOURING CARS AND 116 GALLONS OF LIQUOR SEIZED

Two touring cars and 116 gallons of whisky were confiscated by Patrolmen Bentley and Tyson on Oakdale road Friday night. Occupants of the automobiles fled at the approach of officers and several shots fired by the policemen failed to halt them.

It is believed that the whisky was being transferred from one car to another at the time of officers' arrival.

POLICE DEPRIVED OF RUM EVIDENCE BY RUSTY NAIL

El Paso, Texas, May 30.—Officers who tried to grasp a sausage skin filled with whisky, taken from a woman at the international bridge here, were astonished when they found they could not hold the skin.

The skin had been greased on the outside. The skin bounded away from them and struck a nail, releasing the evidence. The officers had to let the deuce inside.

Proof of illegality having been demonstrated.

Better Gardens.

Very often during The Delineator's Better Homes campaigns exceedingly attractive houses were equipped and entered for prizes. But the industrious committees that worked over them must have been so preoccupied with the inside of the house that they forgot the side which the world sees. They devoted their time to installing devices which would save the housewife much of her usual back-breaking housework, forgetting that the time thus saved might well be spent in the refreshing coolness of a garden.

In several instances the homes themselves would have won prizes, but judges ruled that without gardens they were not better homes, and so could not be considered.

On the other hand, the gardens of Natalie, Pa., helped that poor, handicapped moping town to achieve an amazing transformation. Two years ago it was an eyesore. Rows of small wooden houses lined its streets—all alike, all gray, colorless and depressing. Then came the Better Homes campaign. The women of the town took one of their little houses and made it into a house of dreams. Then they won the prize. The front lawn was leveled and sodded. Shrubs were planted to break the straight line between earth and house. A backyard garden was planted. And at the window ledges garb boxes blossomed with nodding flowers.

Under the spell of this one model home, Natalie, Pa., took new hope. It threw off the sooty cloak that covers the dreariest mining town. It changed from the gray of despair to the green of growing things and the sanguine red of undaunted courage.

Now find a better demonstration of the spiritual effect of gardens upon a community. The people of Natalie are more cheerful and happy.—The Delineator.

TWO RECOVERING FROM INJURIES IN CAR ACCIDENT

Mrs. Pearl Farris and her daughter, Miss Mildred, of Lakewood Heights, Friday were recovering from severe bruises and cuts received Thursday night when they were knocked down by an inbound street car on the Jonesboro road.

Mother and daughter had just gotten off an outbound street car, and were crossing the track when the inbound car struck them.

Considerable excitement was occasioned at Five Points shortly after the noon hour Friday, when a sedan driven by Mrs. C. Thompson, of Charleston, S. C., became unmanageable and pushed an express wagon around the traffic tower.

Several women in the sedan, all from Charleston, became frightened and started screaming.

No one was hurt and the wagon was only slightly damaged. The sedan was badly damaged.

ITALIAN CHAMBER IN FIST BATTLE

Rome, May 30.—Reference by Signor Giunio, nationalist deputy, to the socialists as "that gang" in the chamber today caused a genuine exchange of fistfists between members of the right and left.

Discussing return of the old standing rule, Signor Giunio declared he felt himself representative of the old fascism, in which capacity he wished to recall the impositions, insults and violence sustained from that gang.

He pointed toward the benches where the socialists and followers of former Premier Nitti were sitting.

General Benicivenga, newly elected on the opposition ticket, rushed to the center of the chamber, followed by Giovanni Amendola, fascist. A general exchange of blows followed, during which the general fell to the floor and after which the sitting was suspended.

After the session was resumed, the president of the chamber, Rooco, deplored the incident and urged calm and moderation. Signor Giunio resumed his address, but the socialist deputies left the hall in protest.

$50,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE

A loss estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire of undetermined origin, which broke out early Friday night in the building on the northwest corner of Pryor and Decatur streets.

Flames were confined to the third and fourth floors of the building, which are used by Foote & Davies company as storage rooms for desks, bookcases and general office supplies. Considerable damage was done by smoke and water to offices on the first and second floors. Those suffering losses on these floors were Raymond's Barber Shop, 30 North Pryor street; Quick Service Shoe company, 26 North Pryor street, and Dixie Dry Goods store, Pryor and Decatur street.

The loss suffered by Foote & Davies company will not exceed $25,000, according to John M. Cooper, secretary and treasurer of the firm. Owners of the other places damaged could not estimate their losses. So far as can be learned all losses are covered by insurance.

The fire had been burning for some little time when it was discovered by passersby. The fourth floor, on the Decatur street side, was enveloped in flames when firemen reached the scene.

Fire Chief W. B. Cody, who directed the fight against the fire, was warmly praised by Mr. Cooper for his excellent work in preventing further losses.
